INJURIES IN PLANE CRASH CLAIM LIFE OF YOUTHFUL FLYER

Frank Goldsborough Succumbs; Surgery Is Unavailing

BENNINGTON, Vt., July 17.—Accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Gertrude Goldsborough, and his grief-stricken friend, Donald R. Moeckler, lecturer and writer, the body of America's boy flying champion, Frank Goldsborough, was taken to New York for burial today.

The 19-year-old flyer died in a hospital here late yesterday from a fractured skull which he received when his plane crashed in the nearby mountains Monday in a heavy fog.

Young Goldsborough's career ended on his birthday and three years after his father, Brice Goldsborough, was lost with the plane "Dawn" which disappeared in the Atlantic.

Frank, holder of the junior transcontinental record, succumbed to his injuries without gaining full consciousness. His mother and Moeckler were at his bedside when the end came. He had been brought to the hospital eighteen hours before, after he had laid for almost a day under his wrecked plane, while Moeckler, who escaped injury in the crash, sought aid after he was unable to release his companion.

An operation which was performed on the injured youth's skull by Dr. J. C. Armstrong to remove a piece of bone which caused pressure of the brain, brought relief for a time but yesterday afternoon Goldsborough suffered a relapse from which he never rallied.

Goldsborough became known to

He will make it two up on the son of Colonel Lindbergh by flying to Cortland, N. Y., later today. The flying baby's father is A. R. Mabry, manager of an airplane company in Cortland.

Young Mabry had nothing to say about his impressions. He appeared extremely bored and yawned sleepily.

BRITISH WARSHIPS HURRIED TO EGYPT; TROOPS KEEP PEACE

Alexandria Is Under Martial Law After Bloody Riots

LONDON, July 17.—The Egyptian government, advised by Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald that it would be held responsible for the safety of foreign lives and property and that two British warships are speeding towards the land of the Nile as a precautionary measure, made determined attempts today to frustrate further demonstrations by Wafdist disturbers.

Heavily-armed troops manned every important section of Alexandria, where fourteen lives were lost in Tuesday's political rioting. Sharp watch was kept over the crowded Arab quarter as all-day mourning over the victims began.

The bodies were handed over to the natives by the government after a post mortem and at the insistent demand of the desert sons. Thousands assembled outside the government hospital and shrieked for the bodies, pelted the building with stones until the bodies were brought out. They were carried to the Arab quarter for elaborate mourning.

The dreadnaughts dispatched to Egypt by the British government are the Queen Elizabeth and the Ramillies, and may arrive there today.

In making the announcement before the house of commons, Premier MacDonald stressed his determination not to interfere in purely internal affairs of Egypt, but merely to afford protection to foreign lives and property.

KING ALFONSO ESCAPES HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Spanish Ruler Unhurt In Accident In London, Eng.

LONDON, July 17.—King Alfonso of Spain narrowly escaped injury today when the limousine in which he was being driven to Buckingham Palace to lunch with King George, collided with another car which was driven by a woman.

Dense noonday crowds in the streets witnessed the crash. King Alfonso was accompanied by his personal aides and was chatting animatedly when the other car loomed up squarely in front of the royal limousine.

Alfonso's chauffeur tried to swerve to avoid the crash, but was unsuccessful. The two cars met with an impact which smashed the glass between the tonneau where his majesty was sitting and the chauffeur's seat.

Although the broken glass was scattered through the tonneau of the car, neither the king nor any of his companions was injured.

King Alfonso immediately sprang from his car and rushed to the other one to determine whether any one had been injured. When the woman driver assured him on this point, his majesty gallantly expressed his regret that the accident occurred and apologized for any inconvenience that might have been caused.

He then resumed his seat in the limousine and was driven to the palace for his luncheon engagement with King George.

POSSE HUNTS NEGRO AFTER ATTACK MADE

HOUSTON, Tex., July 17.—A large posse of armed men today scoured the outskirts of this city for a negro who criminally assaulted the wife of a prominent merchant in her apartment here.

The attack took place a few minutes after the husband of the victim had gone to work this morning.

Entering the apartment through a rear entrance, the negro forced the woman to turn over her purse containing a small amount of money, at the point of a knife, and then assaulted her.

The negro was believed to have fled toward the outskirts of the city after the attack, and a posse of more than fifty men took up the search for him shortly after the crime became known.

SUSPECT DENIES CHARGE OFF MURDER

MONTREAL, July 17.—Herman Henry Barrere, arrested here in connection with the murder April 12 in Washington, D. C., of Miss Mary E. Baker, today continued to deny that he had any connection with the crime.

While Washington officers were on the way to Montreal with a murder warrant for Barrere, he admitted that he was wanted in the United States, but flatly insisted he was innocent of the murder of Miss Baker, whose body was found in a culvert.

Barrere said he had been under arrest in the United States and had been questioned regarding the murder.

Barrere was recognized and held when he visited police to complain of being robbed of $50.

POLICE ARREST THREE AND RECOVER $60,000 FROM CANTON BANDITS

BURGLARS BEWARE

PORTSMOUTH, O., July 17.—Burglars should stay away from Portsmouth. At any rate, they should stay away from women and brooms because this combination proved the undoing of a robber here yesterday.

Harry McClelland, 25, of Iron-ton, pleaded guilty to a burglary charge after he had been captured by Mrs. Alice Grooms and her daughter, Mrs. Virginia Bell. They said the man was ransacking their home.

The two women cornered McClelland in a corner. While one of them struck him with a broom, the other took his revolver from him and held him captive until the sheriff arrived.

DIVISION HIGHWAY SUPERINTENDENT IS HELD AS EMBEZZLER

Semi-Pro Athlete Accused Of Padding Payrolls

RAVENNA, O., July 17.—P. M. Jones, 38, semi-professional athlete and superintendent of Division No. 4, of the state highway department today faced charges of embezzlement of funds from the state.

Jones is accused of having embezzled $6,469.90 through payroll padding methods during the last five years. The charges against him were preferred by G. D. Brown and J. F. Eckhardt, inspectors for the state highway department, who reported they discovered alleged discrepancies in Jones' books earlier this month during a routine inspection.

According to the inspectors, thirty fictitious names were found on the accused man's payroll. They said their suspicions were first aroused when the checks which were cashed in the same bank each month, showed a striking resemblance in endorsements.

Jones was released on $10,000 bond following an arraignment before Justice of the Peace H. W. Campbell late yesterday. His hearing has been set for July 21.

BROCKTON, Mass., July 17.—Ralph D. Agostino, world's champion flagpole sitter, touched solid ground today for the first time in thirty-four days. He came down from his lofty perch after having been in the air for thirty-four days and four hours.

Believe Arrests Will Clear Up Many Bank Robberies

CANTON, O., July 17.—With the arrest of three men who are believed to have had a part in the bank messenger holdup here yesterday, in which one robber was slain and a special bank guard was seriously wounded by gunfire, police today believed they have broken up a robber ring which has been operating in northeastern Ohio.

In addition to the $60,000 lot which was recovered by police within a few hours after it had been grabbed from the hands of the bank messenger in front of the post office here, authorities today reported the confiscation of a large quantity of goods believed to have been part of the loot from a series of robberies throughout this section of the state.

James Romeo, 27, reputed Canton underworld figure, in whose hotel room police discovered the $60,000 loot from the messenger holdup, is said to have been identified by two witnesses as the man who was driving the car in which one of the holdup men escaped with the money following the gunfire in front of the postoffice.

Romeo, who was placed under arrest a short time after the robbery took place, refused to talk when he was quizzed by police.

Police planned to quiz two other men today in connection with the robbery. They are claimed to be friends of Romeo. Their names were not revealed.

The gunman who was felled by bullets from the gun of Charles N. Riblet, 68, chief of the police guard of the First National Bank, was identified as Charles Williams, alias Charles Kish, 25, of Cleveland. Riblet was shot twice by the bandits before he opened fire, was reported to be in a semi-serious condition at Mercy Hospital today. He is suffering from bullet wounds in his right side, but is expected to recover, hospital attaches report.

HIGH TEMPERATURE HITS CALIFORNIA; TIMBER DESTROYED

Mercury Reaches 112; Thousands Of Acres Of Forests Burn

SAN FRANCISCO, July 17.—Forest fires and extreme heat continued today on the Pacific coast.

Four deaths were reported. W. E. Rogers, 72, died of heat prostration at Brawley, Cal., where the highest temperature of the coast, 112 degrees, was recorded.

James Genaronis dropped dead in El Centro, Cal., where the heat mercury also touched 112. G. S. Lampert, 52, Los Angeles, died from heat prostration at Coyote Wells. Hugh Avery, 20, Mesa, Ariz., died while fighting a brush fire near Pasadena, Cal.

Los Angeles again had a sizzling temperature of 97 degrees with no relief promised.

Fires raged over thousands of acres of forest and brush lands. Lightning started thirty-four new forest fires in the San Bernardino Mountains near Los Angeles, but most of them were controlled.

One hundred men were rushed to Hayford Valley in northern California last night when a new fire broke out and threatened a small town. The fire had destroyed 450 acres of valuable timber at an early hour today.

Twenty-five hundred acres of brush was burned in Madera County, 1500 acres were blackened in San Benito County, and 3,000 acres were burned over in the Tehachapi district.

CLEVELAND HOTELS PICKETED; STRIKE APPROVED BY LABOR

Federation Backing Employees Fighting "Open Shop"

CLEVELAND, July 17.—Taking up the crusade against the open shop principle, the Cleveland Federation of Labor today had assured full moral and financial support to the union waiters, waitresses and cooks in their conflict with leading downtown hotels here.

"This is an open shop fight," Harry McLaughlin, president of the Cleveland Federation, declared at a meeting last night. "Big business is out to crush labor. If a wreck is coming we might as well all go down together."

Picketing was continued at the doors of five prominent hotels today by members of the cooks, waiters and waitresses union who walked out yesterday in protest to the decision of certain hotels to operate on an open shop basis.

Operating engineers and maintenance men also walked out of the affected hotels in a sympathy strike.

Despite the strike conditions, managers of the affected hotels reported today that they were having no difficulty in maintaining their service at a standard.

AUTOIST ACCUSED

PORTSMOUTH, O., July 17.—Elza Roush, 23, of Hillsboro, was held under bond here today in connection with the death of Eugene Smittle, 22, in an automobile collision last Monday.

Roush pleaded guilty yesterday to a charge of driving while intoxicated and admitted that he caused the crash which cost the life of Smittle. He likely will be sentenced today.

MOONEY WITNESS OFF TO RECALL PERJURED STORY OF BOMB CASE

NEW YORK, July 17.—Bound for California to recant the perjury which he believes sent Tom Mooney and Warren Billings to prison for life as an aftermath of the San Francisco Preparedness

Supporting himself with a cane and his face haggard and pale, the watchman and wanderer arrived here last night from Baltimore and conferred with his three lawyers.

MacDonald, who was released in Baltimore by Judge Walter I. Dawkins of the supreme bench to permit him to testify in California, refused to be interviewed by a group of reporters which surrounded him on his arrival. He said his lawyers had told him not to talk.

In behalf of their client, the lawyers issued a statement which said MacDonald admitted frankly having committed perjury in his testimony against Mooney and Billings. He has been warned, the statement said, that his decision to talk now may lead to severe punishment.

MONTANA PICKS WET REPUBLICAN AS FOE OF SENATOR WALSH

Veteran Solon Will Face Wet And Dry Fight This Year

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Another wet-and-dry senatorial contest was chalked up today for decision in the November elections as a result of the Montana primary.

Late returns gave the Republican nomination overwhelmingly to Judge Albert J. Galen, one of the states' outstanding jurists, and an uncompromising foe of prohibition. Judge Galen will oppose in November Senator Thomas J. Walsh, the veteran Democratic incumbent who is now completing his eighteenth year in the upper house.

Senator Walsh has had a brilliant career in the senate, which includes the prosecution of the oil scandals. Ordinarily he would be considered a safe bet for re-election, yet Galen is such an outstanding figure in the state and the prohibition issue is so keen that the Democrats are acutely worried over his chances.

Walsh has been a consistent dry throughout his senatorial career, despite the accepted wetness of his state. Montana has twice gone wet via the referendum route, and is now one of the few states that has no state enforcement of the Volstead act. The state law was repealed a few years ago, notwithstanding Herculean efforts of the dries to prevent it.

Scouting the wet swing in his state, Senator Walsh recently modified his dry stand to the extent of publicly stating that he would be willing to vote for a national referendum on prohibition if the people of his state desired it. This offer was made at the same time that Senator Jones (R) of Washington, author of the five-and-ten law, surprised the country by making a similar announcement.

Indications are that the rival candidates in Montana will receive the support of the national organizations which battle on the prohibition issue. Walsh will be supported by the Anti-Saloon League and other dry outfits, while Judge Galen probably will be aided by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

Tom Guest, convicted of killing Bailey Browder, druggist, during a bank robbery in 1928, followed the Negro.

Guest thanked the warden for the treatment he had received while in prison and on noticing some men he knew among the witnesses said, "I am a better man than some I see here tonight."

Both men went to the chair unaided.

TRAGIC CHAPTER IN MAIL PLANE WRECK CLEARS UP MYSTERY

Maurice Graham Is Believed To Have Lived Five Days

CEDAR CITY, Utah, July 17.—The final and tragic chapter in a mystery of the skies was written today when the body of Maurice Graham, Western Air Express airmail pilot, was brought here for shipment to Los Angeles.

Graham's body, badly decomposed, was found in a lonely spot twenty-three miles west of here late yesterday. It was more than six miles from the spot at which his wrecked plane was found several weeks ago.

No notes were discovered to indicate how Graham must have suffered from exposure after his ship crashed in the severest blizzard of the winter, late January 10.

Authorities believe the pilot lived about five days after the smashup and that during that period he wandered in semi-conscious condition through the desolate mountain country of southern Utah.

It could not be determined whether Graham was injured in the crash.

Hundreds of men and several Western Airmail Express planes combed the bleak Utah hillsides for days after the crash of Graham's ship. Neither the pilot nor his machine was found.

Theories were advanced that bandits had come upon the wrecked plane, killed Graham, and looted the mail bags of about $75,000 cash and securities amounting to nearly a quarter of a million dollars.

These suppositions were killed, however, when sheep herders discovered the plane. The mail was forwarded, about six months later.

Early in June an automobile mechanic at Elk City, Okla., announced he was Maurice Graham, declaring that details of the crash had been kept secret. Officials of Western Air Express denied this, however.

Graham had been awarded the title, champion air mail pilot of the world, by the Professional Pilots' Association. In less than two years he had flown a distance of 215,000 miles without losing a single piece of mail.

Graham was married and had two children.

Major Richard McDonald and a searching party of five men stumbled upon Graham's body yesterday after they had scoured the countryside for ten days. All the papers Graham was known to have had when he hopped off from Las Vegas, Nev., for Salt Lake City, were found in his pockets.

Major MacDonald said there was little more than a skeleton left of Graham's body. It was found in the underbrush close to the bank of a creek. Indications were that a knife was in one hand and a can of tomatoes nearby. Graham's loaded revolver was in his holster.

Surroundings indicated, MacDonald said, that the pilot had been circling around the foothills of the Kanara Mountains and was heading for Zion National Park when he was overcome. He sat down with the intention of taking some nourishment to sustain him in his trek through the deep snow but became unconscious and slumped back into the brush, to die.

Major MacDonald and Graham were buddies in the air service during the World War.

In a simple, quiet ceremony performed at the home of the bride's parents, near Yellow Springs, Miss Euretta Meredith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Meredith, became the bride of the Rev. Ezra Bauman, Fort Morgan, Colorado, Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Twenty near relatives and friends of the bridal couple assembled for the single ring ceremony, performed by the Rev. J. W. Patton, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Yellow Springs.

The service was read in the living room of the Meredith home, which was decorated with bouquets of garden flowers in various hues. Miss Meredith wore a tailored suit of white silk pique with accessories of white. There were no attendants for the ceremony.

Immediately following the marriage the guests were served a light refreshment course after which the Rev. and Mrs. Bauman left for their wedding trip. They expect to spend a short time in northern Ohio and later will go to Fort Morgan to make their home.

The Rev. Mr. Bauman is engaged in Spanish mission work for the Mission Board of the M. E. Church at Fort Morgan.

Both the Rev. and Mrs. Bauman are returned missionaries, having served for a number of years under the Mission Board of the Methodist Episcopal Church in South America. The Rev. Mr. Bauman is a graduate of Baldwin-Wallace College at Berea, O., and also a graduate of the University of Michigan, at Ann Arbor, Mich., while Mrs. Bauman graduated from the University of Cincinnati.

Miss Freda Shaw, Allison Ave., is visiting relatives in Corning, N. Y., for six weeks. While there she also expects to visit Niagara Falls.

Regular meeting of Phoenix Rebekah Lodge will be held at the I. O. O. F. Hall, W. Main St., Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock. A full attendance of members is desired.

Mr. and Mrs. Pearl Riley, N. Detroit St., were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Luther, Reading Road, Cincinnati. They were accompanied home by Mrs. Rowena Zartman, N. Detroit St., who had been spending several days with her daughter, Mrs. Luther.

Firemen wrecked a small boys' "club house" at 420 E. Second St., at noon Thursday.

Summoned to the place by an alarm of fire the department found a blaze smoldering among papers and boxes in the shed at the rear where the lads had their club. When the youngsters abandoned the club for other pleasures they left a lighted candle which burned down and set fire to the club house.

Firemen tore out the rubbish to extinguish the blaze. The property is occupied by Mrs. Onella Jackson, colored.

A city ordinance providing for regulation of second hand dealers, junk dealers and pawnbrokers, became effective Tuesday.

Wednesday the police department began the work of filing necessary data in a new record book compiled for that purpose. The law requires that such dealers furnish police each day with a complete list and description of every article of personal property, bond, note or other security deposited or pledged with them, advances of money made, purchases, and full descriptions of persons pawning or selling articles and the hour at which the deal was made.

Local Red Cross authorities assisted this week in the case of a 17-year-old girl, from Norfolk, Va., stranded at Cedarville. The young girl had hitch-hiked from Norfolk to a point in Indiana and was en route home, but because of lack of funds had become stranded in Cedarville early Monday morning.

Local authorities investigated the case and the girl was returned to Norfolk, Wednesday evening. It was learned that the girl, because of the wanderlust, had deserted her husband and two-year-old child in Norfolk.

Death dissolved the oldest law firm in San Francisco in which the original partners were practicing.

W. T. Hess, 62, of Harris and Hess, died while his partner, Isaac Harris, was appearing in Supreme Court on his last case before ascending the Municipal bench.

Commenting to the court that he would not practice there any more, Harris said:

"Harris and Hess, after thirty-five years of practice, is to be dissolved."

PUBLICITY DESIRE LEADS TO DOWNFALL

COLUMBUS, O., July 17.—The desire to see their names on the front page of the local newspapers today had led two 11-year-old boys into crime and had resulted in them being held at the juvenile detention home here.

The boys, who admitted to police that they forced their way into two rescue missions here and destroyed furniture and fixtures valued at $500, said that they did it to see "if there'd be anything in the papers about it."

The boys names were withheld.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

EDIFYING SPEECH—Let no corrupt communication proceed out of your mouth, but that which is good to the use of edifying, that it may minister grace unto the hearers.—Eph. 4:29.

HANS ANDERSEN

While his native city of Odense, Denmark, celebrates the one hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary of the birth of Hans Christian Andersen this year with the dedication of a memorial hall, men and women everywhere may pause to consider, with relation to whatever they are trying to make of their own lives, the intentions and achievements of Andersen in the perspective of a century and a quarter.

Andersen, himself an ugly duckling, rose to fame and honor through the sheer insistence of the creative urge within him. The child of poor, shiftless, sickly parents, his father a shoemaker by trade, Hans Christian lived so completely in a world of the imagination that ordinary obstacles of poverty and unfriendliness could not swerve his determination to set down on paper some of his amazing dreams. But the point for us to remember is that Andersen desired to shine as a dramatist, a singer, a dancer, or a novelist, and not as the author of those wistful fairy tales which have made him immortal. Although he had enough business sense to give his public what it seemed to want, he scorned his "sleight of hand with fancy's golden apples" and turned eagerly from the successive volumes of fairy tales to the composition of novels. Yet it is safe to assume that for every score of readers familiar with the stories of the Little Match Girl or the Steadfast Tin Soldier, there is not one to name any of Andersen's novels. His attitude had much in common with that of the late Conan Doyle, who resented his creatorship of Sherlock Holmes as the foundation for his literary fame.

So Andersen's career and the steady posthumous popularity of his fairy tales, tinged as they are with the melancholy he must have known as a child, bid us reflect that fame is a whimsical jade. Whatever may be our personal ambitions, we have no way of knowing what may cause our memory to be acclaimed, in greater or less degree, as our talents have been great or small.

A COMMUNITY MYSTERY

It is a kind of a mystery, in many cities and towns, how some people can stand it to maintain their property in unattractive condition, when all around them are good looking homes and business places. One would think that people would be ashamed of having their property constitute such a drag on a neighborhood.

A poorly maintained home, shabby and disorderly, will do as much harm on a street as to have one of the houses catch fire. The modern fire departments usually get fires out before they do much harm, but the demoralizing effect of a shabby home drives people to locate elsewhere. What many of our communities need, is some system for waking up the people who maintain property poorly, and convincing them that they are injuring their neighbors and themselves as well.

We see where they have taken a census of liars in England. Oh, pardon us! Our error! The item refers to the 112,725 members of the National Federation of Anglers.

Wonder what the king of Italy thinks about Mussolini's approval of a declaration proclaiming the 18-year-old Prince Otto king of Hungary?

The sun is commencing to recede toward the south, but it sends down scorching glances as it travels away.

The WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

STOP THE SHOOTING

Three times as many revolvers were sold in the United States in seven months of 1929 and 1930 as in the same period the preceding year. To stop the sale of revolvers except after the most careful investigation and for the most carefully established reasons is one of the ways to get at the root of crime. We do not spend enough time thinking about the contributions which law-abiding and so-called respectable citizens make to the crime record of this country. Most of us do something to promote crime although we would be indignant if charged with having any sympathy with the criminal class. The bad citizenship of many of us comes not from deliberate intent but from negligence.

RULES AND RULES

A 156-year-old Turk visiting America says his great age is due to partly due to the fact that he doesn't drink liquor and never has. And on the same page of the paper we will doubtless read the story of somebody who is 104 years old and boasts that he has used whiskey all his life and can't see any sense in prohibition. The Turk, born about the time of the battle of Lexington, says he has been a piano mover since 1800. He interests us a lot. He doubtless is not as old as he thinks but is older than most men. He demonstrates what the human being can stand. We might all live to be 150 if we lived normally, ate little, slept much, worried none. But listening to the rules for long life is worth little. There is no general rule. What is good for one system is not good for another. Stefansson, Arctic explorer, lived six months on nothing but meat and it agreed with him. He neither lost nor gained weight and his blood pressure was not affected. Others, eating no meat, fare vastly better. The best way is not to let others make rules for you. Make them for yourself. Use your judgment and study the results.

ENDING WAR

In 1917 Uncle Sam went to war. Some got the idea that this was to be his last war. The world thereafter was going to be kept in line by treaties and a general desire for peace. Now, 13 years after we declared war for the last time, we are spending three times as much for military purposes as we were then. Peace is a plant that grows slowly. It has yet hardly broken through the soil.

WHAT AND WHERE?

Somebody writes that fifteen million lie dead in the tombs of Rome, and once they were in a hurry. Sick beds, hospitals, unhappy homes, and cemeteries are full of people who were in a hurry. The next time you find yourself in a hurry, excited and upset, ask yourself where you are going and what for.

SOMETHING FOR HIS MONEY

The naval conference in London cost the American taxpayers $4,000 a day. That's all right. We are good spenders, but we have a right to want our money's worth. Are we finally going to get $4,000 a day's worth of world peace or is that sum merely to be added to the battleship budget? What this country needs right now is the peace that comes with the adjournment of congress. Here's your hat and don't hurry back.

THE QUESTION BOX

CENTRAL PRESS WASHINGTON BUREAU

Answers to questions of information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, P. O. Box 126, Washington D. C., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions.

1. Was the eighteenth amendment to the constitution voted on by the people or was it ratified by the state legislatures? 2. Did Representative Volstead write the Volstead act?

1. The constitution provides that amendments be made either in constitutional conventions or by ratification by the state legislatures. The latter method was used in ratifying the eighteenth amendment. 2. It is generally admitted that Burton K. Wheeler, late head of the Anti-Saloon league, wrote the Volstead act, which was given its name because Representative Volstead was chairman of the committee in charge of drafting the act.

Vice President Curtis

Did Vice President Curtis hold any political office before he became vice president?

Mr. Curtis was elected to the house of representatives in 1892 and served until 1907, when he was elected to fill out the unexpired term of J. R. Burton in the senate. He was also in the senate from 1914 until his inauguration as vice president. He was elected from the state of Kansas.

Lotteries Barred

Is there a law forbidding the use of the mails for the sending of lottery tickets?

In 1890 congress passed an act forbidding the transmission through the mails of lottery advertising and tickets. An act of congress, in 1894, forbade, also, the importation of lottery tickets or advertising relating to them.

World's Oldest Tree

How old is the oldest tree in the world?

The oldest tree in the world, according to the Missouri Botanical Bulletin, is a bald cypress growing in Santa Maria del Tula, Mexico. It is about 125 feet in circumference, and from 4,000 to 6,000 years old. The Sequoia trees of the National Park are estimated to be between 3,000 and 4,000 years old.

Meteorites

What are meteorites? Meteorites, as we know them, are bodies of iron or stone ranging in size from particles of dust to masses of 30 tons weight, that circle around space like little planets. Ordinarily they are too small to be seen, but when they enter the earth's atmosphere, as thousands of them do daily, they become visible through being made hot from the friction of the air. The small meteorites burn up when far above the earth and are known as the familiar "shooting stars." The larger masses, known as meteorites, drop in their glowing passage through the air, often reach the earth as meteorites.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK—As a blow to crime, the cops in Tammany Town, who just received an $18,000 salary increase, staged a greensward party for a couple of thousand kids and their mothers from the tenements.

Some benevolent blokes of the Bradstreet breed—bankers, they call themselves—tried to horn in on this here party, but the cops wouldn't leave 'em.

The excursion, which is the first of a series, is regarded by Police Commissioner Mulcahey as the greatest crime deterrent ever undertaken by New York's Boys in Blue.

"Th' Big Idea is," says Mulcahey, "that outin's like this will learn th' kids to come to th' cops instead of runnin' away from 'em."

DRESSING UP

Five of Child's pancake parlors in Tammany Town are being modernized. New facades are being reared on some of them and in others the furnishings are being reared on some of them and in others the furnishings are being replaced by niftier settings. Tests, it is said, have proved that while dallying with the sad-eyed bean and flirting with the pale-faced buttermilk, Childs patrons crave artistic surroundings.

Yas'am!

FAMILY ENTRANCE

The razing of an old, midtown building has disclosed on the wall of the house adjoining the faded letters of a sign advertising a one-time famous drinking place. At the bottom of the sign appear the words: "Family Entrance."

For the benefit of the Younger Set, who breezed into adolescence under the Noble Experiment, it may be explained that in the days B. V. D.—before the Volstead Disaster—most saloons were located on street corners. Their multiple, ostentatious corner entrances were usually augmented by a doorway down the street a little way—a sort of sacred portico—where the female of the species and the fastidious male might invade the premises. The saloons were supposed to "close" at 1 a. m. But the closing law applied

WITH SENATE BALANCE SO DELICATE PROGRESSIVE-ISM BULKS FORMIDABLY IN 1930 CONGRESSIONAL CAMPAIGNS

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Progressive-ism bulks formidably in this year's campaign. Especially is this true of the fights for senate seats, because the senate balance already is so delicate.

Congress' adjournment found the senate progressives badly flattened. Yet for awhile the betting was good that they would tie up the whole stand-pat program. And so, when they would be allied, had not deserted them. What made it worse, all but a mere nucleus of progressives bolted also, when the alliance collapsed.

The stand-pat policy is to follow up their advantage by trouncing all the progressives they can as they pool in the autumn.

On the other hand, the 100 percent progressives realize that, with a very little more strength, they would have thrown a crimp into stand-pat-ism. They will try to hang on, and gain just this little, bit more next November. If they can manage it they will come back more belligerently than ever.

Stand-pat-ism versus progressive-ism is not an issue in all the states, but in the states where it is an issue it is the capital one.

I use the term "progressive-ism" in its today's generally-accepted political sense—in effect, as a distinct party label. Otherwise interpreted it becomes confusing.

For example, Senator Capper of Kansas once told me that he considers himself a progressive. He is a radical. It is a question of definitions. My own estimate of the Kansas is that of a tolerant, enlightened conservative—a high type senator. Nevertheless, his re-election in the fall (a foregone conclusion) certainly will not be hailed as a victory by the progressives.

Though they will be pleased personally, for everyone likes Capper. The progressive-ism of Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, who faces the voters this year, is a matter of opinion.

The progressives claim him generally. To be sure, but they never can absolutely count on him. Especially he takes no risks just as he is about to ask regular Republicans to support him for re-election, which may be good judgment, but detracts a trifle from the thick-and-thinness of the progressive impression he gives.

Senator Thomas D. Schall is another of the group. Always a whirlwind campaigner, I hear from Minnesota that he is making a particularly energetic progressive affair of his present re-election campaign.

Circumstances permitting (as he evidently considers they do this time) I take Schall's sympathies to be truly progressive, but he is a very lively politician. And I have seen him adapt them to temporarily conservative requirements.

Senator James Couzens of Michigan, also of the re-election contingent, has a dual political personality.

On some subjects he is so progressive as to justify Senator Capper's contention that the word "progressive" is not strong enough; it amounts to radicalism. But on other subjects he is an ultra-conservative, not to say reactionary, as Senator Smoot—which is going the limit. Anyone who chooses to try classifying him is welcome to the job; I can't do it.

Among the remainder, Senator Pine is asking Oklahoma to send him back to Washington as a progressive. He did have a spell of it last winter, but before that was a perfectly orthodox Republican and reverted to regularity when the progressive-democratic alliance blew up. For awhile the progressive bloc members thought he was a sincere convert; they must be skeptical now.

In conclusion we come to two of the current season's candidates whose progressive-ism any bonding company would be willing to guarantee it, seems to me:

I reckon "Uncle George" Norris will be taken for granted. Senator McMaster is a much younger man, with only six years behind him in Washington, to Uncle George's nearly a third of a century. It may be worth while taking a squint at the South Dakotan's record.

Senator McMaster started progressively and has grown progressively more progressive since then until last spring he reached this climax:

When the progressive-Democratic

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent

HIDE AND SEEK

PETER WISHED for nothing more than another chance to talk to mean Mrs. Fly. He'd tell her a thing or two, make her ashamed of herself. And she'd have to listen to him now that she was locked indoors. Peter looked on the walls, and searched on the floor, and craned his neck to stare at the ceiling until he grew dizzy. No Mrs. Fly! Peter climbed on a chair and looked behind all the pictures, got down on his hands and knees and peered into dark corners. No Mrs. Fly! Where was she? After he had sought the tricky insect in all the nooks and crannies, Peter sat down to ponder and had just about come to the conclusion that Mrs. Fly had crept through a crack in the door into the yard when a mocking voice spoke:

"Ah there, boy. You didn't stop me, after all, did you. I did as I said I would and you'll not have roast beef for dinner. When I make plans I carry them through, for I'm an insect of my word as I believe you know now!"

Peter glanced up to spy Mrs. Fly on a stovepipe.

"You're a sly one, I'll say that for you, Mrs. Fly," chuckled Peter. "I've been searching the room over for you and all the while, perched on that stovepipe as black as your coat, I suppose you've been laughing at me!"

"Well I had a good chuckle now and then!" admitted Mrs. Fly. "You did look silly, grubbing about in the corners, getting all hot and dusty. Now that you know where I am, what are you going to do about it?"

"I could catch you if I climbed up on a chair," said Peter.

"And what would I be doing all the while, standing still, just waiting to be swatted? No, my fine lad, I should be somewhere else when you got here!"

Next: "Prisoner Makes a Promise."

coalition popped, the progressive bloc hit its lowest ebb in years—a mere five votes on one of the tariff ballots. And of those five, only two were cast by senators whose terms were just ending, with renomination and reelection fights dead ahead.

Right then it called for nerve in any politician to defy his party's majority and stand by his convictions.

Of the two progressives who had that much nerve, one was the respectable Uncle George Norris. The other was Senator McMaster. Uncle George was so well liked that everyone expected it of him, but it was a test for McMaster and he stood it.

Orange and Strawberry Dumplings

One and one-half cup orange juice (do not strain), three-fourths cup water, one-half cup sugar, one-half cup crushed strawberries. Turn orange juice without straining, into a small pan, add water, sugar and orange rind. Heat slowly to boiling, and as the boiling point is reached, drop in the dumplings made by the following recipe:

Dumplings—One cup sifted flour, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one and one-half teaspoons baking powder, one tablespoon sugar, one-eighth teaspoon nutmeg, one cup milk. Mix and sift dry ingredients, add milk and beat well. Drop from teaspoon into boiling orange juice, cover and cook twelve minutes. Serve with orange juice sauce, and on each serving place a spoonful of the crushed berries, which have also been heated.

Beet Salad

One and one-half cups chopped cooked beets, one-fourth cup chopped raw cabbage, one green pepper, one-half cup mayonnaise, two tablespoons horse-radish. Mix vegetables, mayonnaise and horse-radish. Serve on lettuce, garnished with more dressing and sprigs of parsley.

Making Jelly

Don't try to make too much jelly at one time. Rather make several small batches. You will have better success. Use a large preserving kettle. It should be four or five times as large as the amount of fruit and sugar used, or the jelly will boil over.

Measure the juice and boil rapidly for five minutes, skimming off as necessary. Add the required amount of sugar and stir until dissolved. Heating the sugar previously seems to save no extra time, but seems to give a better textured jelly. Cook the syrup very rapidly to give a bright, clear jelly.

To test when the jelly is done, take up a small amount on a spoon and allow it to drop from one side of the spoon. When the drops run together and "sheet" the spoon, then the jelly is done. Remove from the fire at once.

Pour the jelly at once into clean hot glasses, almost to the top. As jelly is an ideal place for germs to grow, giving sugar, warmth and moisture, it should be covered while still hot with a thin film of melted paraffin. This will exclude all air and keep the jelly from gathering mold. Then when the jelly is cold cover with another film of the paraffin, twirling the jar so the hot wax seals the sides as well as across the top.

Re-educate Food Tastes for Results

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

"Isn't there some way of reducing without going through the agony of dieting or losing one's health? I can diet—I have lost 30 pounds by your method—but I have to keep my weight near normal. I am 5 ft. 2 in. tall, without shoes, but manage to stay around 125 to 130."

"My idea to keep normal weight and reduce the other few pounds is this: About three times a week, after these good dinners, use a stomach pump. Or would I soon need an undertaker if I used this method and certain advertised reducing salts?"

Certainly there's a way of reducing without agonizing diet or losing one's health, B! If you followed the method we outlined, you shouldn't have done either. Yes, your anticipated method of using a stomach pump or taking salts constantly might put you in need of an undertaker.

You are 5 ft. 2 in. tall—that's quite short, and short persons need less food than tall persons of the same activities. I imagine you have never re-educated your food tastes. Do you get along without bread and butter when you have other starchy foods at the meal, and actually prefer fruit for dessert (a good serving of which doesn't amount to more than 100 C.) rather than rich puddings, pastries, cakes or pies, which run up from 300 to 800 C. a serving? Those two food habits alone should keep your weight down, if you don't overeat to make up for the concentrated foods you omit. And don't eat candy and nuts, etc., between meals.

The results of exercise are always slow, so you can expect that. Now you just have to accept the fact that, as you are short, you are never going to be able to eat large amounts of food unless you increase your physical activities very markedly; and you probably always will have to watch your weight. But aren't the returns worth it? (Those who need instructions on how to lose or gain weight may have our Petersizing pamphlet by following column letters.)

"We have a physician friend who says that reading in bed is injurious and should not be practiced; the eye should not be used for reading print when the body is horizontal."

"What do you think?"

"MRS. S. M."

It is not considered harmful now to read in bed, if you are well propped up and the light is right. Mrs. S. Laird and Muller's new book "Sleep"—states that it is one of the best means of overcoming insomnia and is perfectly harmless.

But the body shouldn't be horizontal; it should be well propped up.

Mrs. L.: Our pamphlet on the Hygiene of Women gives the home treatment of that slight discharge you mention. See column rules for obtaining it.

Editor's Note: Requests for articles or pamphlets on hand must be accompanied by a "fully self-addressed, stamped envelope, plus the following small charge to help cover cost of printing and handling: for each article wanted, two cents in coin; for each pamphlet, 10 cents in coin. The pamphlets are Reducing and Gaining, Hygiene of Women, The Urinary System, Address Dr. Peters Bureau in care of this paper. Write legibly, and not over 200 words.

"I saw a supreme court justice and explained the whole matter. He wanted me to reopen the case, but I do not know whether I should or not. My wife was led astray by her own aunts, and the man in the case was doing the financing of the divorce and also promised to buy her a house and everything she wished. He did buy a house, but wanted to sell it two weeks after they were married."

"I board with my wife's people, who treat me all right, but I understand if I was not living with them she could come home on a visit. She came two weeks after she was married to this home wrecker, and we went out together just as if we were still friends, but she cannot see me now as she is afraid we will meet and she would stay with me. Now what do you advise? Shall I reopen the case and show her truth, or let it go? I would welcome her back, as we were married 12 years."

"FAITHFUL LISTENER." As the divorce was obtained through fraud and you were not notified of the hearing, you could undoubtedly have it annulled if you could prove these things. I wonder whether it would better matters any, however? Could you trust your wife again if you took her back? And does she want to come back? If she has learned her lesson and loves you best and would be happier with you, it might be worth while to open the case, but to do so without knowing that she cares and wants to leave her present husband would only make more trouble and would humiliate her as well as him.

So find out first, if possible, what her feelings in the matter are. As to the visit to her people, couldn't you go somewhere else to stay for the time she was at home, if it would be better for both?

SANDRA: The young man whom you love is certainly very honorable, as he will not make love to you without your parents' consent. If money and social position are the only things that cause your parents to prefer the West Pointer, I think they are unwise, for these things do not always bring happiness. At the same time, Sandra, a girl of 17 may not be sure that her love will last. Why do you not try to be, if not content, at least acquiescent with their plans for the year the man you love is away, and see whether your love for him is real or a passing fancy. You then will be 18 and may assert yourself more and claim the right to love and marry whom you prefer. In the meantime, you can be nice to the other young man, but make no promise to marry him. Call this year of waiting a test of both of you.

WEARY PAT: I haven't the address you ask for, Pat. Sorry.

Color Effect Important To Beauty

By GLADYS GLAD

Women are gradually learning that they can't be nervous, depressed, unhappy, or ugly-tempered and still expect to be beautiful. And they are beginning to realize the value of serenity, the ability to control their reactions to environments. But they have thus far neglected to appreciate the psychological effect of color upon the state of the mind.

It is an established fact that color is definitely depressing or exhilarating, or even just restful. Every human being reacts differently to various colors. Many women are haggard and nervous merely because of their lack of understanding of the influence that colors have upon their spirits. Some tempers are only the result of inharmonious surroundings, color or having a great share in the disturbing environment.

Stage and screen stars understand the effects that color has upon their spirits and their ability to work. They utilize this principle in decorating their homes and their dressing rooms.

Screen stars are not required to spend any great amount of time in their dressing rooms. Therefore, only the really great stars expend much thought upon decorating them. Stars of the stage, however, find it necessary to spend a great deal of time in their dressing rooms. Hence their surroundings are of great importance to them.

One of the prettiest dressing rooms I ever saw belonged to Marilyn Miller. A great deal of beauty and thought had been put into its decorations. The predominant colors were pastel blue, pink and green. Miss Miller recognized that these dainty shades had a definite psychological effect upon her, so she incorporated them into her surroundings. Lily Damita's dressing room is also worthy of a great deal of praise. Although it is a bit more dramatic and colorful than Miss Miller's, it exactly suits the French mademoiselle's temperament.

Every woman should utilize this principle in her home. The rooms should be decorated harmoniously, in colors that have a soothing, restful pleasing effect upon the state of mind.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES Make-Up G. M.: I think that a soft ochre shade of powder, soft orange rouge, and a light lipstick would blend harmoniously with your natural coloring.

Permanent Mrs. S.: Weekly or fortnightly hot oil shampoos are the best treatments for permanently-waved hair. It will help to nourish the roots of the hair and the scalp, and will keep the hair soft and glossy.

Hands Miss B. E.: An excellent hand lotion can be prepared from three parts of rose water and one part of glycerine. Olive oil massaged into the hands and fingertips is also beneficial.

EDITOR'S NOTE: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" if you will write her, care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope and 10 cents in coin, for each to cover cost of printing and mailing. Personal questions on beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

for
Phil Frame

BY
R. A. H.

The Carroll-Binders and the Gram Paints didn't do themselves much good during the twin bill Tuesday evening, by dividing the polls. The Grams, however, were outshined by their second victory of the season while the Binders were nagged at their inability to rise higher in the National League race.

Both contests were well-played, and because of low scores, furnished plenty of interest. Thursday evening's program will bring together the Country Club Caddies and Company L, in an American League contest. These teams occupy the lower bracket in the smaller circuit and the soldiers have yet to win a game. The Grams come back for more Friday when they play the Geysers in a National League game which gives the Geysers an opportunity to recover some lost prestige and to pull away from the Downtown Country Club in the tie for second place.

Sidney Well's explanation that George Kelly was released from the Reds in order to make way for a younger team, may have put a burr under some of the oldsters with the club as the veterans are prominent in the present spurt of the Howley men.

It is reported that some of these veterans, however, are shaving twice a day so that Howley won't see their gray whiskers and sell them down the river for some young and active ball player who fits in the Spalding League and is too pride-conscious to bend over for a ground ball.

Louis Menowitz, of Cincinnati, who is building a miniature golf course on the Carroll-Binder Co. lot at Detroit St. and Fairground Ave. says his course may be ready by the latter part of this week.

Menowitz is one-half of a partnership that operates a miniature course in Cincinnati, and he will play here and manage the Xenia end of the business. Perry Bros., Cincinnati contractors, are building the course, using local labor and materials, and Menowitz fears that neighbors need have no fear of being annoyed by the course, other than the lights, which are focused directly on the links, or from improper conduct.

He expects to operate the links as long as the bugs come out and their putting exercise and when weather ends the season, will put the links under canvas until next summer.

The Lilliputian game is taking on here, brothers, and if you don't believe what you read in this column visit the plant built by the Henrie brothers, Clem and Homer, at the White House barbecue, Springfield Pike.

Out there where men are scouts and dogs are not the new national pastime is attracting the amateurs in herds and droves. Par for the course is 44 but if the boys keep on shooting the way they have in the past, the Henrie boys will either make the course more hazardous or lower the par. The course has already been shot in a 36 which is good putting on anybody's links. It is the latest form of the old fashioned pastime of "put and take." Only now you "put" the ball in the cup and then "take" it to the next green. If you don't like greens, remember these are only artificial and have no relation to spinach.

A new pastime is also being developed here but may not become popular, because the number of players is limited. This is called "hunt the book" and the course is played with the assistance of a pair of good dogs and a telephone. It happens this way: The score-books for the softball games are left at the Harness cigar store, E. Main St.; someone gets the book, takes it to Cox field where the game is scored; the book is then supposed to be returned to the Harness store but under the new game developed, it is not returned there and the whole game consists in the sports department of the Gazette chasing the book the next day in order to get a story of the game in the paper. The game is played in hours instead of strokes and par so far is three hours and twenty-nine minutes. Whoever successfully hides the book so that no story of the game appears in the paper, gets the razzerberries.

Nothing has been heard from Phil Frame, Art Hyman and "Skipper" Finlay since they set out last Saturday for New York. This column hopes they will not be like the fellow who sent a card back home from Canada with this inscription: "I have been up here a month—so they tell me."

BOWERSVILLE AND JAMESTOWN TANGLE

Fans are promised an interesting contest when the Bowersville Independents meet the Jamestown Independents at Jamestown Sunday afternoon.

Records of the teams show they should be evenly matched, each team having won ten of thirteen games played. Considerable rivalry between the two towns increases interest in the Sunday contest.

Lucas and Baker will form the battery for Bowersville while Evans and Kiser will be on the firing line for Jamestown. The game will be called by 2:45 o'clock.

LANGS STRENGTHEN LEAD BY DEFEATING CRITERIONS 16-3

The Langs strengthened their position at the head of the pack in the National League at the expense of the Criterion team at Cox Field Wednesday evening, winning 16 to 3 with the brakes on.

Heavy hitting in the sixth and seventh innings spelled defeat for the Langs and turned what started to be a good ball game, in a riot in favor of the Langs.

As a result the Langs are riding well out in front with a game and one-half advantage over the Geysers and Downtown Country Club in the National League race, and the Criterion lost a few more percentage points.

With Herman Wells on the cas-uality list, the Criterion team presented a revamped line up with "Atlas" Smith doing the pitching and Brennan playing first base.

Smith surprised even his most ardent supporters by hurling a good brand of ball, but weak support afield left him impotent. Harry Williams pitched for the league leaders and let the clothes down with seven hits, one of which, a triple by Smith, was the longest hit of the day.

The Langs started early, scoring twice in the opening round on a single by Bell and a double by Ruse and a pair of infield outs. They were held scoreless then until the fifth, while the losers tied up the count with singletons in the third and fourth. In the third Ern's, doubled with one out, McFadden was safe on Ruse's error and Hager scored Ernest with a sacrifice fly. Burke flied to center for the third out. In the fourth Smith opened with a triple to right center and scored while Williams was tossing out Stiles at first.

The Langs got three in the fifth on Williams' double, Buell's single, Bell's double and two errors. The Criterion got back one of these in their half on Brennan's double and McFadden's single.

The Langs scored five in the sixth on singles by Williams, Buell, Bell Ruse and Davis and two errors and added six more in the seventh on a pair of errors and singled by Shaw, Bell, Ruse, Smith, Davis and Gibney. The Country Club Caddies play Company L, in an American League game Thursday evening and the Geysers play the Graham Paints in a National League game Friday.

DRY OFFICER KILLS ALLEGED 'LEGGER'

HAMPTON, Ia., July 17.—A full investigation into the killing of Harland Peterson, known as "one armed Pete," by an alleged undercover prohibition agent was to be made here today.

Peterson was shot and killed during a gun battle which started, authorities said, when State Prohibition Agent Jesse Quinlan and the undercover agent attempted to arrest Peterson on a charge of bootlegging.

Quinlan told authorities that Peterson was transferring a five gallon jug of liquor from his automobile to the automobile which was driven by the undercover agent whose name was withheld.

Quinlan said that as Peterson deposited the jug in the undercover man's car the undercover agent commanded Peterson to surrender. Instead Peterson drew a revolver and started firing. The undercover agent returned the fire, Quinlan declared and killed Peterson. A woman, Mrs. Jones Wheeler, and a man, Cecil Vinton, companions of Peterson, were arrested.

WIFE-MURDER JURY WILL GET CASE SOON

JEFFERSON, O., July 17.—The life of Tibby Smith, 26, accused of conspiring the murder of his 22-year-old wife and the mother of his two children for the love of a quarter-blood Indian girl today was expected to be placed in the hands of twelve men—unopposed to capital punishment and yet unopposed to "mental weakness" as legitimate evidence.

Indications were this morning as Smith's trial entered its closing chapters that the young Ashtabula truckman will know his fate from the lips of his jury by tonight.

Fighting with all the resources of the state behind him to send the accused man to the electric chair for the murder of his wife, Prosecutor Howard M. Nator gathered about him twelve witnesses whom he will call in rebuttal to the defense case.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, July 17.—Under the leadership of the coppers, amusements, business equipments, and a wide scattering of miscellaneous issues, the stock market continued its irregular advance, in a generally quiet trading session today.

Interests committed to the rise found difficulty in attempting to stir up interest in the usual run of speculative favorites, and detecting the necessity of maintaining their dominant hold on price movements, the bull contingent switched promptly to such recently neglected groups as coppers and amusements in which a lingering short interest was rudely prodded.

Amusement shares in particular ruled buoyant, with aggressive buying in Fox Film, General Theaters, Loew's, Paramount and Warner Bros. bringing about a sharp advance in these issues.

Root and All; Out to Stay!

Two tablespoonsful of that amazingly refreshing cool foot invigorating Radox to one gallon of water makes a footbath which after 3 to 4 night's soaking lifts out aching, maddening corns, callouses, too-tired and all.

Radox softens the hard outer layers of corn- and oxygen which Radox liberates, enters the pores, each night penetrating further and further, carrying the salts right to root of corn which can be lifted out bodily.

Wonderful to take out pain and burning and refresh tired feet!

Get a package of Radox at Sayre's Drug Store or any drug store and know the joyous comfort of corn and callous free feet—Radox is the modern, scientific method to remove corns which completely eliminates old fashioned plasters, dangerous cutting, skin destroying acids and obsolete methods.—Adv.

FOIL ATTEMPT TO HOLD-UP THEATER

An unsuccessful attempt was made by a lone bandit to rob the manager and assistant manager of Loew's Dayton theater Thursday morning.

About ten o'clock a man followed assistant Manager Robert Curry into the theater and to his office on the second floor, where he demanded that the safe be opened. Curry was unable to open the safe, and he detained the would-be bandit there until about 11 o'clock when Manager Ernest Austgen entered. Austgen, ordered to open the safe, pleaded that he did not have the combination. After waiting a short time the bandit evidently became frightened and left.

Farm Notes

DAIRYING LEADS AS SOURCE OF FARM INCOME IN OHIO

That the source of income from the sale of agricultural products varied in 1929 in different areas of Ohio is clearly indicated by statistics being compiled by Robert E. Straszheim of the Rural Economics Department at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station. The dairy enterprise was the leading source of income for the state as a whole, accounting for approximately 26 per cent of the total. Dairying was first in forty-five counties; in twenty-seven counties hogs were the most important source; in seven, cattle; in three, vegetables; in three, poultry; in one sheep; in one, fruit; and in one, tobacco.

The gross cash income per acre increased as the animal enterprises represented a larger and larger per cent of the total gross cash income so long as conditions such as size of farm and soil type remained homogeneous. This fact is clearly demonstrated by the following illustrations. In Van Wert County the gross cash income per acre was $14.70 where 64 per cent of the total income was derived from the animal enterprises; while in Allen County 81 per cent of the total income was due to animal enterprises which gave an income of $18.60 per acre or a difference of $3.90 in favor of the county with the more or higher quality livestock. In Defiance County where 67 per cent of the total income came from animal enterprises, the income per acre was only $13.70, while in Williams County the income per acre was $17.20 when 79 per cent of the total came from animal enterprises, or an increase of $3.50 per acre.

Mimeographed copies of the estimated gross cash income from the sale of agricultural products from the farm by counties in 1929 may be obtained by addressing a request to the Rural Economics

Department, Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio.

Scientist Completes History of America's First Cliff Dwellers

NEIL M. JUDD.

tions under the auspices of the National Geographic Society. The work has taken more than seven years, and will be preserved as a national monument and a mute reminder of the past glory of the Pueblos.

Judd divides the civilization of the Pueblo Indians into five distinct eras of development. The first period is still hidden by the mists of time. The fifth is that of the Pueblo now living in New Mexico and Arizona. The large communal structures, according to Judd, characterized the third period of Pueblo development.

The tree-ring calendar, by means of which the age of Pueblo Bonita was established, gives mute but unmistakable evidence that the wood for the first ceiling was cut in the year 919 A. D. The latest ceiling uncovered by the expedition is made of wood that was cut from some thick, dark forest in 1130 A. D. The wood used represents twenty-two generations of Arizona pine trees, a chain of unbroken growth extending from 1929 back to 700 A. D.

America's first apartment house was under construction, it would seem, just seven centuries before the doughty Pilgrim fathers landed at Plymouth Rock. It was undergoing extensive alterations and repairs at the time of the Battle of Hastings in 1066 A. D. And it had fallen into a state of disuse and decline fully three centuries before Columbus first saw light of day.

The First of the Line

It is thought that the Pueblos are descended from a long-headed people known as the "Basket Makers," an unidentified people who made baskets and textiles, but who were apparently unfamiliar with the technique of pottery making.

The Basket Makers, a nomadic hunting tribe, to whom such weapons as the bow and arrow were unknown, are believed to have been the first inhabitants of the United States to acquire and make use of agriculture. It has not yet been ascertained just how they discovered a variety of maize or Indian corn, but it is presumed that they obtained it from the highlands of Mexico. The discovery that the earth yielded food gradually forced the Basket Makers into a semi-sedentary and more settled life. And it is at that period probably that their culture merged with that of the first Pueblos.

Although, until the arrival of the Spaniards in 1540, the pre-historic Pueblos had no metal, no beasts of burden or domestic animals, it is obvious that from their architecture and building that their civilization was on a high plane. Other peoples have left strange monuments, religious edifices and altars, but the Pueblo found his highest expression in the form of domestic architecture as represented by the communal dwellings, just as Americans are doing today.

Cutting Corners Too Fine?

Complete Bank Service Shows You How
to Have a Cash Reserve

KEEP every penny earning" is a true but much abused phrase. Money can earn many valuable things besides interest. Using money to build your credit may often earn more profit than any other sound financial investment. Keeping a substantial cash reserve on hand frequently permits the taking of profits offered by quick-fire business opportunities. Usually these require "cash on the nail" with little or no time to convert securities. These chances for gain are more common just when other investments are difficult to liquidate.

Most men who have accumulated large fortunes, make it a practice in their personal and business finance to keep an adequate cash reserve for such opportunities.

Not the least advantage of surplus funds in your checking account, comes from the strength it adds to personal morale. A cash reserve brings a satisfaction, a feeling of familiarity with success, a confident physical bearing which have a definite money value to the user—for they give him a broader view point and show him an ever widening field for profitable activity.

Building up and keeping such a surplus immediately available is simple in principle, and not as hard to do as most people suppose. With the many demands on personal and business income, perhaps you think, "How can I keep a larger balance in my checking account? How shall I determine what the amount is to be?"

In most cases there is a way to build up a reasonable reserve of ready cash and without unpleasant skimping and scraping. Every day, your banker is in contact with hundreds of cases. Often, some simple adjustment opens the way to a new plan of personal finance, with greater freedom, more comfort and less irksome detail.

Your banker has helped many others find the way. In many instances the plan has proved to be the turning point to greater success. Use your banker more. Get acquainted with him and let him pass on to you the methods successfully used by others with financial problems just like yours.

"Cutting corners too fine," is a common stumbling block in the way of greater profits. A cash reserve is one solution and your banker will gladly cooperate with you in building it up. Talk with him today.

BELLIGERENT WOMAN GONE SAYS JIGGS

By FAITH BALDWIN

(Author of "The Office Wife")

"How would you like to be married to Maggie?" was the first question I asked George McManus upon his recent visit to Gotham from his newly adopted home in California.

Mr. McManus looked horror-struck.

"I wouldn't," he denied vehemently. "Heaven's what a life I would lead!"

"Do you," I asked seriously, "enjoy belligerent women in real life?"

"I do not," he answered just as seriously. "And show me a man who does!"

Mr. McManus said he had been under the impression that in real life Maggie's aggressive type was dying out but at least half the men who send him "faa mail" confess they are married to her.

It seems that South American countries don't believe a woman could be like Maggie and live.

"The strip has been especially popular in South America and I've often wondered why," Mr. McManus admitted, "so I asked the first South Americans I met to tell me all about it. Their explanation was simple. 'Bringing Up Father' is the funniest thing the Latins have found yet because they can't even IMAGINE a woman bossing a man as Maggie does Jiggs!"

When I inquired about the progress of the American strip in other countries Mr. McManus told me of the great fun it has caused in Japan.

"The serious minded Japanese got the same kick out of Maggie

BUSINESS today requires that the successful man be physically fit and mentally alert. Men, especially, forget themselves physically. Their work demands practically all their time. They do not exercise enough. They get little or no sunshine. They are robbed of a good appetite . . . and when their red-blood-cells fall below normal their flesh becomes flabby, their nerves unsteady. Their strength must be reinforced.

Soundness of body and peace of mind depend upon the proper number of red-cells in the blood—5,000,000 to the cubic millimeter. They give blood its color and are carriers of nourishment to every part of the body. It is dangerous to let the red-cell count remain below normal. as the South Americans did," he explained. "A bossy woman is as rare over there as a Jimikisha is here so they think the whole idea is preposterous and very funny. Little do they know!"

Mindful of my own theories on women and careers and recalling the sturdy Maggie's aspirations to opera, I timidly asked Mr. McManus if he thought a woman could handle a career and a home, without compromise to either. I don't believe it can be done.

But Mr. McManus raised an eyebrow. "Women," he said, "can do anything they want to do. It is extraordinary what they can accomplish when they have to." He smiled.

I left the office remembering that Mr. McManus is Irish and his hazel eyes have the grandest twinkle in them that I ever saw. I wondered if he knew I was attempting both a home and career. I think he did. And I bet a cookie there was a blarney stone in his back yard.

The Theater

Anybody who says Joe Brown "stole the show" away from Winnie Lightner in the musical comedy "Hold Everything" that played the Orphium this week, is showing downright masculine partiality.

Joe is nobody's fool as a showman, but when it comes to making out from under the nose of that comical Amazon, Lightner, he will have to get up early in the morning. The best comedy scenes of the production were worked with Joe and Winnie together, each serving as foil for the other's gags, and why be partial?

Howard Hughes, the young and ample millionaire who sat on anlea for two years and eventuallyatched out "Hell's Angels," has about to end their screen partnership as a team. After they finish "Babes in Toyland" they will take separate ways. They began acting together four years ago in New York when cast for "Rio Rita."

Did you know that Lawrence Gray was a production manager at Paramount when he was discovered by Bebe Daniels and persuaded to become an actor? Or that Cliff Edwards used to paint locomotives for a living?

aviation last year when after attending a flying school he flew his plane, American boy, from New York to Los Angeles, establishing new junior records for crossing the continent from east to west and west to east.

Under the sponsorship of various flying companies he continued his aviation career with flights in the east. He was engaged in taking his friend, Mochler, from Cleveland to Keene, N. H., to keep a lecture engagement, when the accident which caused his death, occurred.

Almost immediately after his father's tragic death, Goldsborough planned to become an aviator and after attending high school in Queens, New York, he took up his studies at an aviation school. He was granted a pilot's license in November of last year and started on his record-breaking flight across the country in April, 1930.

The young flyer had attended school with Richard James, who was the first junior aviator to fly across the continent. In December 1928, James completed his flight and the feat inspired young Goldsborough to make plans to better his friend's time.

Young Goldsborough landed in Los Angeles May 4, 1930, with thirteen hours and fifty-seven minutes shaved from the westbound record of young James. He left Los Angeles three days later for New York and arrived in New York May 11 with two more junior aviation titles to his credit—the west-to-east record of twenty-eight hours and eighteen minutes and the round-trip mark of sixty-two hours and twenty-one minutes.

Funeral plans will be made in New York probably late today.

FORMER RESIDENT OF GREENE COUNTY ENDS LIFF TUESDAY

Albertus Devoe, 57, former resident of Greene County committed suicide by shooting himself in the head with a rifle at his home 240 Highland Ave., Dayton, Tuesday night.

Devoe was born near Paintersville and lived in Greene County until a few years ago when he moved to Dayton. He is survived by his widow, three sons, Charles, Joseph and Richard; his father, Lewis Devoe of Paintersville; three brothers, James and Fred who live near Xenia, and Clifford of Akron, and four sisters; Mrs. Harley Copey of Paintersville; Mrs. Carl Leach, Xenia; Mrs. Homer Brickell, who lives near Jamestown and Mrs. Samuel Faulkner, living near Xenia.

actual experience read the words of Mrs. Frances Dearwester, 221 Erkenbrecker Ave., Cincinnati, who declares:

"For six years I had rheumatism in my right hip and for three months was unable to work. The bottoms of my feet burned like fire, and my joints would crack. I had indigestion, and kidney trouble made me get up several times every night. Five bottles of Konjola made new health possible and my nerves are calm. I enjoy my work and I feel like I am in an entirely different world. I eat all I like, and my joints are flexible again. Never can I praise Konjola enough."

Konjola contains no alcohol, no nerve-deadening drugs, no heart-depressing chemicals. It needs no such ingredients its seeming wonders to perform.

Konjola is a new and different medicine of 32 ingredients, 22 of them the juices of roots and herbs long known for their medicinal value. Konjola works quickly and thoroughly at the very root, the fount of the ills of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and of rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. Konjola is not designed to give mere temporary relief, but to bring new, glorious and lasting health.

Konjola is sold in Xenia, Ohio, at the Gallaher Drug Store and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

INJURIES IN PLANE CRASH CLAIM LIFE OF YOUTHFUL FLYER

Frank Goldsborough Succumbs; Surgery Is Unavailing

BENNINGTON, Vt., July 17.—Accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Gertrude Goldsborough, and his grief-stricken friend, Donald R. Mocker, lecturer and writer, the body of America's boy flying champion, Frank Goldsborough, was to be taken to New York for burial today.

The 19-year-old flyer died in a hospital here late yesterday from a fractured skull which he received when his plane crashed in the nearby mountains Monday in a heavy fog.

Young Goldsborough's career ended on his birthday and three years after his father, Brice Goldsborough, was lost with the plane "Dawn" which disappeared in fog on an attempted flight across the Atlantic.

Frank, holder of the junior transcontinental record, succumbed to his injuries without gaining full consciousness. His mother and Mocker were at his bedside when the end came. He had been brought to the hospital eighteen hours before, after he had laid for almost a day under his wrecked plane, while Mocker, who escaped injury in the crash, sought aid after he was unable to release his companion.

An operation which was performed on the injured youth's skull by Dr. J. C. Armstrong to remove a piece of bone which caused pressure of the brain, brought relief for a time but early yesterday afternoon Goldsborough suffered a relapse from which he never rallied.

Goldsborough became known to Field, grandson of the founder of the merchandise house, married Miss Evelyn Marshall in 1915. Early in May of this year she arrived in Reno, where she was expected to establish residence and file suit for divorce. There are three children.

Young Mabry, accompanied by his mother, Mrs. A. R. Mabry and Mrs. Warren J. White of Albany, wife of the pilot, landed here after a flight from North Beach, Long Island.

He will make it two up on the son of Colonel Lindbergh by flying to Cortland, N. Y., later today. The flying baby's father is A. R. Mabry, manager of an air company in Cortland.

Young Mabry had nothing to say about his impressions. He appeared extremely bored and yawned sleepily.

AVOID DRY ISSUE

Although its leaders have attacked the prohibition amendment, the International Lutheran League, in convention at Cleveland decided not to adopt an official stand on the matter, according to its president, E. J. Galmeyer, above, re-elected. One speaker decried "tampering with the federal constitution for the purpose of regulating personal conduct."

BRITISH WARSHIPS HURRIED TO EGYPT; TROOPS KEEP PEACE

Alexandria Is Under Martial Law After Bloody Riots

LONDON, July 17.—The Egyptian government, advised by Premier Ramsay MacDonald that it would be held responsible for the loss of foreign lives and property and that two British warships were speeding towards the land of the pyramids as a precautionary measure, made determined attempts today to frustrate further demonstrations by Wafdist disturbers.

Heavily-armed troops manned every important section of Alexandria, where fourteen lives were lost in Tuesday's political rioting. Sharp watch was kept over the crowded Arab quarter as all-day mourning over the victims began.

The bodies were handed over to the natives by the government after a post mortem and at the insistence of the desert sons. Thousands assembled outside the government hospital and shrieked for the bodies, pelting the building with stones until the bodies were brought out. They were carried to the Arab quarter for elaborate mourning.

The dreadnaughts dispatched to Egypt by the British government are the Queen Elizabeth and the Ramillies, and may arrive there today.

In making the announcement before the house of commons, Premier MacDonald stressed his determination not to interfere in purely internal affairs of Egypt, but merely to afford protection to foreign lives and property.

PASSPORT FORGERY GANG UNCOVERED

BERLIN, July 17.—A passport forgery gang, organized to ship Communists to the United States for the purpose of disseminating Red propaganda, has been uncovered here, police authorities announced today.

Police claim clues have been found linking the organization with Soviet Russian officials.

The gang is said to have been headed by German, Italian and Hungarian Communists.

KING ALFONSO ESCAPES HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Spanish Ruler Unhurt In Accident In London, Eng.

LONDON, July 17.—King Alfonso of Spain narrowly escaped injury today when the limousine in which he was being driven to Buckingham Palace to lunch with King George, collided with another car which was driven by a woman. Dense noonday crowds in the streets witnessed the crash. King Alfonso was accompanied by his personal aides and was chatting animatedly when the other car loomed up squarely in front of the royal limousine.

Alfonso's chauffeur tried to swerve to avoid the crash, but was unsuccessful. The two cars met with an impact which smashed the glass between the tonneau where his majesty was sitting and the chauffeur's seat.

Although the broken glass was scattered through the tonneau of the car, neither the king nor any of his companions was injured.

King Alfonso immediately sprang from his car and rushed to the other one to determine whether any one had been injured. When the woman driver assured him on this point, his majesty gallantly expressed his regret that the accident occurred and apologized for any inconvenience that might have been caused.

He then resumed his seat in the limousine and was driven to the palace for his luncheon engagement with King George.

POSSE HUNTS NEGRO AFTER ATTACK MADE

HOUSTON, Tex., July 17.—A large posse of armed men today scoured the outskirts of this city for a negro who criminally assaulted the wife of a prominent merchant in her apartment here.

The attack took place a few minutes after the husband of the victim had gone to work this morning.

Entering the apartment through a rear entrance, the negro forced the woman to turn over her purse containing a small amount of money, at the point of a knife, and then assaulted her.

The negro was believed to have fled toward the outskirts of the city after the attack, and a posse of more than fifty men took up the search for him shortly after the crime became known.

SUSPECT DENIES CHARGE OFF MURDER

MONTREAL, July 17.—Herman Henry Barriere, arrested here in connection with the murder April 12 in Washington, D. C., of Miss Mary E. Baker, today continued to deny that he had any connection with the crime.

While Washington officers were on the way to Montreal with a murder warrant for Barriere, he admitted that he was wanted in the United States, but flatly insisted he was innocent of the murder of Miss Baker, whose body was found in a culvert.

Barriere said he had been under arrest in the United States and had been questioned regarding the murder.

Barriere was recognized and held when he visited police to complain of being robbed of $50.

THREE DIE OF POISON FOOD

DETROIT, July 17.—Another death brought the poisoned food toll to three here today while five other persons are fighting for their lives in local hospital from the same cause.

POLICE ARREST THREE AND RECOVER $60,000 FROM CANTON BANDITS

CANTON, O., July 17.—With the arrest of three men who are believed to have had a part in the bank messenger holdup here yesterday, in which one robber was slain and a special bank guard was seriously wounded by gunfire, police today believed they have broken up a robber ring which has been operating in northeastern Ohio.

In addition to the $60,000 loot which was recovered by police within a few hours after it had been grabbed from the hands of the bank messenger in front of the post office here, authorities today reported the confiscation of a large quantity of goods believed to have been part of the loot from a series of robberies throughout this section of the state.

James Romeo, 27, reputed Canton underworld figure, in whose hotel room police discovered the $60,000 loot from the messenger holdup, is said to have been identified by two witnesses as the man who was driving the car in which one of the holdup men escaped with the money following the gunfire in front of the postoffice. Romeo, who was placed under arrest a short time after the robbery took place, refused to talk when he was quizzed by police.

Police planned to quiz two other men today in connection with the robbery. They are claimed to be friends of Romeo. Their names were not revealed.

The gunman who was felled by bullets from the gun of Charles N. Riblet, 68, chief of the police guard of the First National Bank, was identified as Charles Williams, alias Charles Kish, 25, of Cleveland. Riblet who was shot twice by the bandits before he opened fire, was reported to be in a semi-serious condition at Mercy Hospital today. He is suffering from bullet wounds in his right side, but is expected to recover, hospital attaches report.

LINDBERGH TO TALK ON RADIO AUGUST 8

NEW YORK, July 17.—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh will make an address on "international aviation" over the radio August 8, it was announced today. A worldwide hookup will carry his talk around the globe.

NEW YORK, July 17.—Bound for California to recant the story which he believes sent Tom Mooney and Warren Billings to prison for life as an aftermath of the San Francisco Preparedness day bombing, John MacDonald left here early today.

Supporting himself with a cane and his face haggard and pale, the watchman and wanderer arrived here last night from Baltimore and conferred with his three lawyers.

MacDonald, who was released in Baltimore by Judge Walter I. Dinkins of the supreme bench to permit him to testify in California, refused to be interviewed by a group of reporters which surrounded him on his arrival. He said his lawyers had told him not to talk.

In behalf of their client, the lawyers issued a statement which said MacDonald admitted frankly having committed perjury in his testimony against Mooney and Billings. He has been warned, the statement said, that his decision to talk now may lead to severe punishment.

HIGH TEMPERATURE HITS CALIFORNIA; TIMBER DESTROYED

Mercury Reaches 112; Thousands Of Acres Of Forests Burn

SAN FRANCISCO, July 17.—Forest fires and extreme heat continued today on the Pacific coast.

Four deaths were reported. W. E. Rogers, 72, died of heat prostration at Brawley, Cal., where the highest temperature of the coast, 112 degrees, was recorded.

Hugh Avery, 20, Mesa, Ariz., died while fighting a brush fire near Pasadena, Cal.

Los Angeles again had a sizzling temperature of 97 degrees with no relief promised.

Fires raged over thousands of acres of forest and brush lands. Lightning started thirty-four new forest fires in the San Bernardino Mountains near Los Angeles, but most of them were controlled.

One hundred men were rushed to Hayfork Valley in northern California last night when a new fire broke out and threatened a small town. The fire had destroyed 450 acres of valuable timber at an early hour today.

Twenty-five hundred acres of brush was burned in Madra County, 1500 acres were blackened in San Benito County, and 3,000 acres were burned over in the Tehachapi district.

CLEVELAND HOTELS PICKETED; STRIKE APPROVED BY LABOR

Federation Backing Employees Fighting "Open Shop"

CLEVELAND, July 17.—Taking up the crusade against the open shop principle, the Cleveland Federation of Labor today had assured full moral and financial support to the union waiters, waitresses and cooks in their conflict with leading downtown hotels here.

"This is an open shop fight," Harry McLaughlin, president of the Cleveland Federation, declared at a meeting last night. "Big business is out to crush labor. If a wreck is coming we might as well all go down together."

Picketing was continued at the doors of five prominent hotels today by members of the cooks, waiters and waitresses union who walked out yesterday in protest to the decision of certain hotels to operate on an open shop basis.

Operating engineers and maintenance men also walked out of the affected hotels in a sympathy strike.

Despite the strike conditions, managers of the affected hotels reported today that they were having no difficulty in maintaining their service at a standard.

Veteran Solon Will Face Wet And Dry Fight This Year

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Another wet-and-dry senatorial contest was chalked up today for decision in the November elections as a result of the Montana primary.

Late returns gave the Republican nomination overwhelmingly to Judge Albert J. Galen, one of the states' outstanding jurists, and an uncompromising foe of prohibition. Judge Galen will oppose, in November, Senator Thomas J. Walsh, the veteran Democratic incumbent who is now completing his eighteenth year in the upper house.

Senator Walsh has led a brilliant career in the senate, which includes the prosecution of the oil scandals. Ordinarily he would be considered a safe bet for re-election, yet Galen is such an outstanding figure in the state, and the prohibition issue is so keen that the Democrats are acutely worried over his chances.

Walsh has been a consistent dry throughout his senatorial career, despite the accepted wetness of his state. Montana has twice gone wet via the referendum route, and is now one of the few states that has no state enforcement code to back up the Volstead act. The state law was repealed a few years ago, notwithstanding Herndon's efforts of the drys to prevent it.

Scanting the wet swing in his state, Senator Walsh recently modified his dry stand to the extent of publicly stating that he would be willing to vote for a national referendum on prohibition if the people of his state desired it.

This offer was made at the same time that Senator Jones (R) of Washington, author of the five-and-ten law, surprised the country by making a similar announcement.

Indications are that the rival candidates in Montana will receive the support of the national organizations which battle on the prohibition issue. Walsh will be supported by the Anti-Saloon League and other dry outfits, while Judge Galen probably will be aided by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

TRAGIC CHAPTER IN MAIL PLANE WRECK CLEARS UP MYSTERY

Maurice Graham Is Believed To Have Lived Five Days

CEDAR CITY, Utah, July 17.—The final and tragic chapter in a mystery of the skies was written today when the body of Maurice Graham, Western Air Express airmail pilot, was brought here for shipment to Los Angeles.

Graham's body, badly decomposed, was found in a lonely spot twenty-three miles west of here late yesterday. It was more than six miles from the spot at which his wrecked plane was found several weeks ago.

No notes were discovered to indicate how Graham must have suffered from exposure after his ship crashed in the severest blizzard of the winter, late January 10.

Authorities believe the pilot lived about five days after the smashup and that during that period he wandered in semi-conscious condition through the desolate mountain country of southern Utah.

It could not be determined whether Graham was injured in the crash.

Hundreds of men and several Western Air Express planes combed the bleak Utah hillsides for days after the crash of Graham's ship, but neither the pilot nor his machine was found.

Theories were advanced that bandits had come upon the wrecked plane, killed Graham, and looted the mail bags of about $75,000 cash and securities amounting to nearly a quarter of a million dollars.

These suppositions were killed, however, when sheep herders discovered the plane. The mail was forwarded, about six months late. Early in June an automobile mechanic at Elk City, Okla., announced he was Maurice Graham, declaring that details of the crash had been kept secret. Officials of Western Air Express denied this, however.

Graham had been awarded the title, champion airmail pilot of the world, by the Professional Pilots' Association. In less than two years he had flown a distance of 215,000 miles without losing a single piece of mail.

Graham was married and had two children.

Major Richard McDonald and a searching party of five men stumbled upon Graham's body yesterday after they had scoured the country for ten days. All the papers Graham was known to have had when he hopped off to Las Vegas, Nev., for Salt Lake City, were found in his pockets.

Major McDonald said there was little more than a skeleton left of Graham's body. It was found in the underbrush close to the bank of a creek. Indications were that Graham had sat down to eat. A knife was in one hand and a can of tomatoes nearby Graham's loaded revolver was in his holster.

Surroundings indicated, McDonald said, that the pilot had been circling around the foothills of the Kanarra Mountains and was heading for Zion National Park when he was overcome. He sat down with the intention of taking some nourishment to sustain him in his trek through the deep snow but became unconscious and slumped back into the brush, to die.

Major McDonald and Graham were buddies in the air service during the World War.

TWO PAY PENALTY IN ELECTRIC CHAIR

MCALISTER, Okla., July 17.—Two men were electrocuted at the Oklahoma State Penitentiary here shortly after midnight today.

James Forrest, Negro, given the death penalty for attacking a white woman in 1928, was the first to take the chair.

Tom Guest, convicted of killing Bailey Browder, druggist, during a bank robbery in 1928, followed the Negro.

Guest thanked the warden for the treatment he had received while in prison and on noticing some men he knew among the witnesses said, "I am a better man than some I see here tonight."

Both men went to the chair unaided.

PERFECT MARRIAGE GOES ON ROCKS

COLUMBUS, O., July 17.—Columbus' "perfect marriage" went kerplunk today.

The former Miss Vera Bass, 16, one of the partners in the marriage, which was to be one "life-long date," is missing from her husband, George McNabb, 23, local confectioneer, today.

The couple was married July 5, just one week after they had met. They had never had a "date" until the night they were married, when they drove to a little West Virginia town and roused a sleepy minister to perform the ceremony.

McNabb met his young wife when she came to his store to make a purchase. The romance continued for a week. Then they had their first "date" and decided to make it last, forever. It didn't.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

EDIFYING SPEECH—Let no corrupt communication proceed out of your mouth, but that which is good to the use of edifying, that it may minister grace unto the hearers.—Eph. 4:29.

HANS ANDERSEN

While his native city of Odense, Denmark, celebrates the one hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary of the birth of Hans Christian Andersen this year with the dedication of a memorial hall, men and women everywhere may pause to consider, with relation to whatever they are trying to make of their own lives, the intentions and achievements of Andersen in the perspective of a century and a quarter.

Andersen, himself an ugly duckling, rose to fame and honor through the sheer insistence of the creative urge within him. The child of poor, shiftless, sickly parents, his father a shoemaker by trade, Hans Christian lived so completely in a world of the imagination that ordinary obstacles of poverty and unfriendliness could not swerve his determination to set down on paper some of his amazing dreams. But the point for us to remember is that Andersen desired to shine as a dramatist, a singer, a dancer, or a novelist, and not as the author of those wistful fairy tales which have made him immortal. Although he had enough business sense to give his public what it seemed to want, he scorned his "sleight of hand with fancy's golden apples" and turned eagerly from the successive volumes of fairy tales to the composition of novels. Yet it is safe to assume that for every score of readers familiar with the stories of the Little Match Girl or the Steadfast Tin Soldier, there is not one to name any of Andersen's novels. His attitude had much in common with that of the late Conan Doyle, who resented his creatorship of Sherlock Holmes as the foundation for his literary fame.

So Andersen's career and the steady posthumous popularity of his fairy tales, tinged as they are with the melancholy he must have known as a child, bid us reflect that fame is a whimsical jade. Whatever may be our personal ambitions, we have no way of knowing what may cause our memory to be acclaimed, in greater or less degree, as our talents have been great or small.

A COMMUNITY MYSTERY

It is a kind of a mystery, in many cities and towns, how some people can stand it to maintain their property in unattractive condition, when all around them are good looking homes and business places. One would think that people would be ashamed of having their property constitute such a drag on a neighborhood.

A poorly maintained home, shabby and disorderly, will do as much harm on a street as to have one of the houses catch fire. The modern fire departments usually get fires out before they do much harm, but the demoralizing effect of a shabby home drives people to locate elsewhere. What many of our communities need, is some system for waking up the people who maintain property poorly, and convincing them that they are injuring their neighbors and themselves as well.

We see where they have taken a census of liars in England. Oh, pardon us! Our error! The item refers to the 112,725 members of the National Federation of Anglers.

Wonder what the king of Italy thinks about Mussolini's approval of a declaration proclaiming the 18-year-old Prince Otto king of Hungary?

The sun is commencing to recede toward the south, but it sends down scorching glances as it travels away.

The man without a reputation has a comfort — he never needs to worry about losing one.

The WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

STOP THE SHOOTING

Three times as many revolvers were sold in the United States in seven months of 1929 and 1930 as in the same period the preceding year. To stop the sale of revolvers except after the most careful investigation and for the most carefully established reasons is one of the ways to get at the root of crime. We do not spend enough time thinking about the contributions which law-abiding and so-called respectable citizens make to the crime record of this country. Most of us do something to promote crime although we would be indignant if charged with having any sympathy with the criminal class. The bad citizenship of many of us comes not from deliberate intent but from negligence.

RULES AND RULES

A 156-year-old Turk visiting America says his great age is due or partly due to the fact that he doesn't drink liquor and never has. And on the same page of the paper we will doubtless read the story of somebody who is 104 years old and boasts that he has used whiskey all his life and can't see any sense in prohibition. The Turk, born about the time of the battle of Lexington, says he has been a piano mover since 1800. He interests us a lot. He doubtless is not as old as he thinks but is older than most men. He demonstrates what the human being can stand. We might all live to be 150 if we lived normally, ate little, slept much, worried none. But listening to the rules for long life is worth little. There is no general rule. What is good for one system is not good for another. Stefanoson, Arctic explorer, lived six months on nothing but meat and it agreed with him. He neither lost nor gained weight and his blood pressure was not affected. Others, eating no meat, fare vastly better. The best way is not to let others make rules for you. Make them for yourself. Use your judgment and study the results.

ENDING WAR

In 1917 Uncle Sam went to war. Some got the idea that this was to be his last war. The world thereafter was going to be kept in line by treaties and a general desire for peace. Now, 13 years after we declared war for the last time, we are spending three times as much for military purposes as we were then. Peace is a plant that grows slowly. It has yet hardly broken through the soil.

WHAT AND WHERE?

Somebody writes that fifteen million lie dead in the tombs of Rome, and once they were in a hurry. Sick beds, hospitals, unhappy homes, and cemeteries are full of people who were in a hurry. The next time you find yourself in a hurry, excited and upset, ask yourself where you are going and what for.

SOMETHING FOR HIS MONEY

The naval conference in London cost the American taxpayers $4,000,000 a day. That's all right. We are good spenders, but we have a right to want our money's worth. Are we finally going to get $4,000 a day's worth of world peace or is that sum merely to be added to the beltshaking budget? What this country needs right now is the peace that comes with the adjournment of congress. Here's your hat and don't hurry back.

THE QUESTION BOX

CENTRAL PRESS WASHINGTON BUREAU

Answers to questions of information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, P. O. Box 126, Washington D. C., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions.

1. Was the eighteenth amendment to the constitution voted on by the people or was it ratified by the state legislatures? 2. Did Representative Volstead write the Volstead act?

1. The constitution provides that amendments be made either in constitutional conventions or by ratification by the state legislatures. The latter method was used in ratifying the eighteenth amendment. 2. It is generally admitted that Burton K. Wheeler, late head of the Anti-Saloon league, wrote the Volstead act, which was given its name because Representative Volstead was chairman of the committee in charge of drafting the act.

Vice President Curtis

Did Vice President Curtis hold any political office before he became vice president?

Mr. Curtis was elected to the house of representatives in 1892 and served until 1907, when he was elected to fill out the unexpired term of J. R. Burton in the senate. He was also in the senate from 1914 until his inauguration as vice president. He was elected from the state of Kansas.

Lotteries Barred

Is there a law forbidding the use of the mails for the sending of lottery tickets?

In 1890 congress passed an act forbidding the transmission through the mails of lottery advertising and tickets. An act of congress, in 1894, forbade, also, the importation of lottery tickets or advertising relating to them.

World's Oldest Tree

How old is the oldest tree in the world?

The oldest tree in the world, according to the Missouri Botanical Bulletin, is a bald cypress growing in Santa Maria del Tula, Mexico. It is about 125 feet in circumference, and from 4,000 to 6,000 years old. The Sequoia trees of the National park are estimated to be between 3,000 and 4,000 years old.

Meteorites

Meteorites, as we know them, are bodies of iron or stone ranging in size from particles of dust to masses of 30 tons weight, that circle through space like little planets. Ordinarily they are too small to be seen, but when they enter the earth's atmosphere, as thousands of them do daily, they become visible through being made hot from the friction of the air. The small meteorites burning when far above the earth and are known as the familiar "shooting stars." The larger masses, known as meteors during their glowing passage through the air, often reach the earth as meteorites.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK.—As a blow to crime, the cops in Tammany Town, who just received an $18,000 salary increase, staged a greensward party for a couple of thousand kids and their mothers, from the tenements.

Some benevolent blokes, like Bradstreet breed-bankers, they call themselves—tried to horn in on this here party, but the cops wouldn't leave 'em.

The excursion, which is the first of a series, is regarded by Police Commissioner Mulrooney as the greatest crime deterrent ever undertaken by New York's Boys in Blue.

"Th' Big Idea is," says Mulrooney, "that outin's like this will learn th' kids to come to th' cops instead of runnin' away from 'em."

DRESSING UP.—Five of Child's pancake parlors in Tammany Town are being modernized. New facades are being reared on some of them and in others the furnishings are being replaced by niftier settings. Tests, it is said, have proved that little dallying with the sad-eyed bean and flirting with the pale-faced buttercake, Childs patrons crave artistic surroundings.

FAMILY ENTRANCE

The raising of an old, midtown building has disclosed on the wall of the house adjoining, the faded letters of a sign advertising a one-time famous drinking place. At the bottom of the sign appear the words: "Family Entrance."

For the benefit of the Youngster Set, who breezed into adolescence under the Noble Experiment, it may be explained that in the days B. V. D.—Before the Volstead Disaster—most saloons were located on street corners. Their multiple, ostentatious corner entrances were usually augmented by a doorway down the street a little ways—a sort of sacred portico—where the female of the species and the fastidious male might invade the premises. The saloons were supposed to "close" at 1 a. m. but the closing law applied

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Progressive-ism bulks formidably in this year's campaign. Especially is this true of the fights for senate seats, because the senate balance already is so delicate.

Congress' adjournment found the senate progressive badly flattened. Yet for awhile the betting was good that they would tie up the whole stand-pat program. And so they would if a lot of Democrats, with whom they were allied, had not deserted them. What made it worse, all but a mere nucleus of progressives bolted also, when the alliance collapsed.

The stand-pat policy is to follow up their advantage by trouncing all the progressives they can at the polls in the autumn.

On the other hand, the 100 per cent progressives realize that, with a very little more strength, they would have thrown a crum into stand-pat-ism. They will try to hang on, and gain just this little bit more next November. If they can manage it they will come back more beligerently than ever.

Stand-pat-ism versus progressive-ism is not an issue in all the states, but in the states where it is an issue it is the capital one.

I use the term "progressive-ism" in its today's generally-accepted political sense—in effect, as a distinct party label. Otherwise interpreted it becomes confusing.

For example, Senator Capper of Kansas once told me that he considers himself a progressive. Senators to whom I would confine the progressive designation, he calls radicals. It is a question of definitions. My own estimate of the Kansas is that of a tolerant, enlightened conservative—a high type progressive. Nevertheless, his re-election in the fall (a foregone conclusion) certainly will not be hailed as a victory by the progressives—though they will be pleased personally, for everyone likes Capper.

The progressive-ism of Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, who faces the voters this year, is a matter of opinion.

The progressives claim him generally, to be sure, but they never can absolutely count on him. Especially he takes no risks just as he is about to ask regular Republicans to support him for re-election, which may be good judgment but detracts a trifle from the thick-and-thinness of the progressive impression he gives.

Senator Thomas D. Schall is another of the group. Always a whitewind campaigner, I hear from Minnesota that he is making a particularly energetic progressive affair of his present re-election campaign. Circumstances permitting (as he evidently considers they do this time) I take Schall's sympathies to be truly progressive, but he is a very wily politician, and I have seen him adapt them to temporarily conservative requirements.

Senator James Couzens of Michigan, also of the re-election contingent, has a dual political personality.

On some subjects he is so progressive as to justify Senator Capper's contention that the word "progressive" is not strong enough; it amounts to radicalism. But on other subjects he is an ultra-conservative, not to say reactionary, as Senator Smoot—which is going only to the corner doors. The portion down the street yclept "The Family Entrance," was never barred against thirsty invaders.

There were exceptions, of course, and minor variations with respect to the hours of "closing," but the principle on which the Family Entrance operated underwent no change until the New Dispensation hit us.

the limit. Anyone who chooses to try classifying him is welcome to the job; I can't do it.

Among the remainder, Senator Pine is asking Oklahoma to send him back to Washington as a progressive. He did have a spell of it last winter, but before that was a perfectly orthodox Republican and reverted to regularity when the progressive-Democratic alliance blew up. For awhile the progressive bloc members thought he was a sincere convert; they must be skeptical now.

In conclusion we come to two of the current season's candidates whose progressive-ism any bonding company would be willing to guarantee it, seems to me:

I reckon "Uncle George" Norris will be taken for granted. Senator McMaster is a much younger man, with only six years behind him in Washington, to Uncle George's nearly a third of a century. It may be worth while taking a squint at the South Dakotan's record.

Senator McMaster started progressively and has grown progressively more progressive since then until last spring he reached this climax:

When the progressive-Democratic

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent

HIDE AND SEEK

PETER WISHED for nothing more than another chance to talk to mean Mrs. Fly. He'd tell her a thing or two, make her ashamed of herself. And she'd have to listen to him now that she was locked indoors.

Peter looked on the walls, and searched on the floor, and craned his neck to stare at the ceiling until he grew dizzy. No Mrs. Fly! Peter climbed on a chair and looked behind all the pictures, got down on his hands and knees and peered into dark corners. No Mrs. Fly! Where was she? After he had sought the insect in all the nooks and crannies, Peter sat down to ponder and had just about come to the conclusion that Mrs. Fly had crept through a crack in the door into the yard when a mocking voice spoke:

"Ah there, boy. You didn't stop me, after all, did you. I did as I said I would and you'll not have roast beef for dinner. When I make plans I carry them through. For I'm an insect of my word as I believe you know now!"

Peter glanced up to spy Mrs. Fly on a stovepipe.

"You're a sly one, I'll say that for you, Mrs. Fly," chuckled Peter. "I've been searching the room over for you and all the while, perched on that stovepipe as black as your coat, I suppose you've been laughing at me!"

"Well I had a good chuckle now and then!" admitted Mrs. Fly. "You did look silly, grubbing about in the corners, getting all hot and dusty. Now that you know where I am, what are you going to do about it?"

"I could catch you if I climbed up on a chair," said Peter.

"And what would I be doing all the while standing still, just waiting to be swatted? No, my fine lad, I should be somewhere else when you got here!"

coalition popped, the progressive bloc hit its lowest ebb in years—mere five votes on one of the tariff ballots. And of those five, only two were cast by senators whose terms were just ending, with renomination and reelection fights dead ahead. Right then it called for nerve in any politician to defy his party's majority and stand by his convictions.

Of the two progressives who had that much nerve, one was the reputable Uncle George Norris. The other was Senator McMaster. Uncle George was so well liked that everyone expected it of him, but it was a test for McMaster and he stood it.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Orange and Strawberry Dimples

One and one-half cup orange juice (do not strain), three-fourths cup water, one-half cup sugar, grated rind one orange, one-half cup crushed strawberries. Turn orange juice without straining, into a small pan, add water, sugar and orange rind. Heat slowly to boiling, and as the boiling point is reached, drop in the strawberries, and cook twelve minutes. Serve with orange juice sauce, and on each serving place a spoonful of the crushed berries, which have also been heated.

Beet Salad

One and one-half cups chopped cooked beets, one-fourth cup chopped raw cabbage, one green pepper, one-half cup mayonnaise, two tablespoons horse-radish. Mix vegetables, mayonnaise and horse-radish. Serve on lettuce, garnished with more dressing and sprigs of parsley.

Making Jelly

Don't try to make too much jelly at one time. Rather make several small batches. You will have better success. Use a large preserving kettle. It should be four or five times as large as the amount of fruit and sugar used, or the jelly will boil over.

Measure the juice and boil rapidly for five minutes, skimming off as necessary. Add the required amount of sugar and stir until dissolved. Heating the sugar previously seems to save an extra time, and seems to give a better textured jelly. Cook the syrup very rapidly to give a bright, clear jelly.

To test when the jelly is done, take up a small amount on a spoon and allow it to drop from one side of the spoon. When the drops run together and "sheet" the spoon, then the "jelly is done. Remove from the fire at once.

Pour the jelly at once into clean hot glasses, almost to the top. As jelly is an ideal place for germs to grow, giving sugar, warmth and moisture, it should be covered while still hot with a thin film of melted paraffin. This will exclude all air and keep the jelly from gathering mold. Then when the jelly is cold cover with another film of the paraffin, twirling the jar so the hot wax seals the sides as well as across the top.

Re-educate Food Tastes for Results

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

"Isn't there some way of reducing without going through the agony of dieting or losing one's health? I can diet—I have lost 30 pounds by your method—but I have to keep continually watching the scales to keep my weight near normal. I am 5 ft. 2 in. tall, without shoes, but manage to stay around 125 to 130."

"My idea to keep normal weight and reduce the other few pounds is this: about three times a week, after these good dinners, use a stomach pump. Or would I soon need an undertaker if I used this method and certain advertised reducing salts?"

Certainly there's a way of reducing without agonizing diet or losing one's health, B! If you followed the method we outlined, you shouldn't have done either. Yes, your anticipated method of using a stomach pump or taking salts constantly might put you in need of an undertaker.

You are 5 ft. 2 in. tall—that's quite short, and short persons need less food than tall persons of the same activities. I imagine you have never re-educated your food tastes. Do you get along without bread and butter when you have other starchy foods at the meal, and actually prefer fruit for dessert (a good serving of which doesn't amount to more than 100 C.) rather than rich puddings, pastries, cakes or pies, which run up from 300 to 800 C. a serving? Those two food habits alone should keep your weight down, if you don't overeat to make up for the concentrated foods you omit. And don't eat candy and nuts, etc., between meals.

The results exercise are always slow, so you can expect that. Now you just have to accept the fact that, as you are short, you are never going to be able to eat large amounts of food unless you increase your physical activities very markedly; and you probably always will have to watch your weight. But aren't the returns worth it?

(Those who need instructions on how to lose or gain weight may have our Peterizing pamphlet by following column rules.)

"We have a physician friend who says that reading in bed is injurious and should not be practiced; the eye should not be used for reading print when the body is horizontal."

"What do you think?"

"MRS. S." M. It is not considered harmful now to read in bed, if you are well propped up and the light is right. Mrs. S. Laird and Muller's new book "Sleep"—states that it is one of the best means of overcoming insomnia and is perfectly harmless. But the body shouldn't be horizontal; it should be well propped up.

Mrs. L.: Our pamphlet on the Hygiene of Women gives the home treatment of that slight discharge you mention. See column rules for obtaining it.

Editor's Note: Requests for articles or pamphlets on hand must be accompanied by a "fully self-addressed, stamped envelope, plus the following small charge to help cover cost of printing and handling: for each article wanted, two cents in coin; for each pamphlet, 10 cents in coin. The pamphlets are Reducing and Gaining, Hygiene of Women, The Urinary System, Address Dr. Peters, Bureau, in care of this paper. Write legibly, and not over 200 words.

Can Wife Be Trusted If Taken Back

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

MISUNDERSTANDINGS, petty irritations, and disloyalties often lead to heartbreak and separation. Homes are broken up, lives wrecked through these things and through outside interference that one person is not strong enough to resist.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: About 18 months ago my wife obtained a divorce by means of fraud and perjury, and I never found out about it, as I had been in an accident and did not know about the case being tried and a verdict given."

"I saw a supreme court justice and explained the whole matter. He wanted me to reopen the case, but I do not know whether I should or not. My wife was led astray by her own aunts, and the man in the case was doing the financing of the divorce and also promised to buy her a house and everything she wished. He did buy a house, but it wanted to sell it two weeks after they were married."

"I boarded with my wife's people, who treat me all right, but I understand if I was not living with them she could come home on a visit. She came two weeks after she was married to this home wrecker, and we went out together just as if we were still friends, but she cannot come home now as he is afraid we will meet and she would stay with me. Now what do you advise? Shall I reopen the case and show the truth, or let it go? I would welcome her back, as we were married 12 years."

"FAITHFUL LISTENER." As the divorce was obtained through fraud and you were not notified of the hearing, you could undoubtedly have it annulled if you could prove these things. I wonder whether it would better matters any, however? Could you trust your wife again if you took her back? And does she want to come back? If she has learned her lesson and loves you best and would be happier with you, it might be worth while to open the case, but to do so without knowing that she cares and wants to leave her present husband would only make more trouble and would humiliate her as well as him.

So find out first, if possible, what her feelings in the matter are. As to the visit to her people, couldn't you go somewhere else to stay for the time she was at home, if it would be better for both?

SANDRA: The young man whom you love is certainly very honorable, as he will not make love to you without your parents' consent. If money and social position are the only things that cause your parents to prefer the West Pointer, I think they are unwise, for these things do not always bring happiness. At the same time, Sandra, a girl of 17 may not be sure that her love will last. Why do you not try to be, if not content, at least acquiescent with their plans for the year the man you love is away, and see whether your love for him is real or a passing fancy. You then will be 18 and may assert yourself more and claim the right to love and marry whom you prefer. In the meantime, you can be nice to the other young man, but make no promise to marry him. Call this year of waiting a test of both of you.

WEARY PAT: I haven't the address you ask for, Pat. Sorry.

Color Effect Important To Beauty

By GLADYS GLAD

Women are gradually learning that they can't be nervous, depressed, unhappy, or ugly-tempered and still expect to be beautiful. And they are beginning to realize the value of serenity, the ability to control their reactions to environments. But they have thus far neglected to appreciate the psychological effect of color upon the state of the mind.

It is an established fact that color is definitely depressing or exhilarating, or even just restful. Every human being reacts differently to various colors. Many women are haggard and nervous merely because of their lack of understanding of the influence that colors have upon their spirits. Some tempers are only the result of inharmous surroundings, color or having a great share in the disturbing environment.

Stage and screen stars understand the effects that color has upon their spirits, and their ability to work. They utilize this principle in decorating their homes and their dressing rooms.

Screen stars are not required to spend any great amount of time in their dressing rooms. Therefore, only the really great stars expend much thought upon decorating them. Stars of the stage, however, find it necessary to spend a great deal of time in their dressing rooms. Hence their surroundings are of great importance to them.

One of the prettiest dressing rooms I ever saw belonged to Marilyn Miller. A great deal of beauty and thought had been put into its decorations. The predominant colors were pastel blue, pink and green. Miss Miller recognized that these dainty shades had a definite psychological effect upon her, so she incorporated them into her surroundings.

Lily Damita's dressing room is also worthy of a great deal of praise. Although it is a bit more exotic and colorful than Miss Miller's, it exactly suits the French mademoiselle's temperament.

Every woman should utilize this principle in her home. The rooms should be decorated harmoniously, in colors that have a soothing, restful pleasing effect upon the state of mind.

The Carroll-Binders and the Grams Paints didn't do themselves much good during the twin ball Tuesday evening, by dividing the odds.

The Grams, however, were oiled by their second victory of a season while the Binders were agitated at their inability to rise higher in the National League race.

With the exception of the fifth contests were well-played, and because of low scores, furnished plenty of interest.

Thursday evening's program will again together the Country Club Indians and Company L, in an American League contest. These teams occupy the lower bracket in a smaller circuit and the soldiers are yet to win a game. The Grams came back for more Friday night when they play the Binders in a National League game which gives the Binders an opportunity to reverse some lost prestige and to pull away from the Downtown Country Club in the tie for second place.

Sidney Wells' explanation that George Kelly was released from the Reds in order to make way for a younger team, may have put a little more interest in the game. It is reported that some of these veterans, however, are shaving their day so that they won't see their gray whiskers and sell them down the river for some young and active ball player who is in the Spalding League and is too pride-conscious to bend over for a ground ball.

Louis Menowitz, of Cincinnati, is building a miniature golf course on the Carroll-Binder Co. lot. Detroit St. and Fairground Ave. his course may be ready by the latter part of this week.

Menowitz is one-half of a partnership that operates a miniature golf course in Cincinnati, and he will stay here and manage the Xenia side of the business. Perry Bros., Cincinnati contractors, are building the course, using local labor and materials, and Menowitz says that neighbors need have no fear of being annoyed by the course, other than the lights, which are used directly on the links, or on improper conduct.

He expects to operate the links as long as the bugs come out. Their putting exercise and when the weather ends the season, will the links under canvas until next summer.

The Lilliputian game is taking on here, brothers, and if you don't believe what you read in this column visit the plant built by the Lilliputians, Clem and Homer, at the White House barbecue, Springfield Pike.

Out there where men are escorts and dogs are not the national astime is attracting the amateurs a herds and droves. Par for the course is 44 but if the boys keep on shooting the way they have in the past, the Henrie boys will either make the course more hazardous or lower the par. The course as already been shot in a 36 which is good putting on anybody's links. It is the latest form of the old fashioned pastime of "put and take." Only now you "put" the ball in the cup and then "take" it to the next green. If you don't like greens remember these are only artificial and have no relation to pinball.

A new pastime is also being developed here but may not become popular, because the number of players is limited. This is called "hunt the book" and the course is played with the assistance of a pair of good dogs and a telephone. It happens this way: The score-keepers for the softball games are left at the Harless cigar store, E. Main St.; someone gets the book, it takes it to Cox Field where the game is scored; the book is then supposed to be returned to the Harless store but under the new game developed, it is not returned here and the whole game consists in the sports department of the Gazette chasing the book the next day in order to get a story of the game in the paper. The game is played in hours instead of strokes and par so far is three hours and twenty-nine minutes. Whoever successfully hides the book so that no story of the game appears in the paper, gets the razzberries.

Nothing has been heard from Phil Frame, Art Hyman and "Skipper" Finlay since they set out last Saturday for New York. This column hopes they will not be like the fellow who sent a card back home from Canada with this inscription: "I have been up here a month—so they tell me."

BOWERSVILLE AND JAMESTOWN TANGLE

Fans are promised an interesting contest when the Bowersville Independents meet the Jamestown Independents at Jamestown Sunday afternoon.

Records of the teams show they should be evenly matched, each team having won ten of thirteen games played. Considerable rivalry between the two towns increases interest in the Sunday contest.

Lucas and Baker will form the battery for Bowersville while Evans and Kiser will be on the firing line for Jamestown. The game will be called by 2:45 o'clock.

LANGS STRENGTHEN LEAD BY DEFEATING CRITERIONS 16-3

The Langs strengthened their position at the head of the pack in the National League at the expense of the Criterion team at Cox Field Wednesday evening, winning 16 to 3 with the brakes on.

Heavy hitting in the sixth and seventh innings spelled defeat for the Langs and turned what started to be a good ball game, into a riot in favor of the loop-leads. As a result the Langs are riding well out in front with a game and one-half advantage over the Geysers and Downtown Country Club in the National League race, and the Criterion lost a few more percentage points.

DRY OFFICER KILLS ALLEGED 'LEGGER'

HAMPTON, Ia., July 17.—A full investigation into the killing of Harland Peterson, known as "one armed Pete," by an alleged undercover prohibition agent was to be made here today.

Peterson was shot and killed during a gun battle which started, authorities said, when State Prohibition Agent Jesse Quinlan and the undercover agent attempted to arrest Peterson on a charge of bootlegging.

Quinlan told authorities that Peterson was transferring a five gallon jug of liquor from his automobile to the automobile which was driven by the undercover agent whose name was withheld. Quinlan said that as Peterson deposited the jug in the undercover agent's car the undercover agent commanded Peterson to surrender. Instead of surrendering, Quinlan said, Peterson drew a revolver and started firing. The undercover agent returned the fire, Quinlan declared and killed Peterson. A woman, Mrs. Wheeler, and a man, Cecil Vinton, companions of Peterson, were arrested.

CRITERIONS LOSE TO LUNCHROOM OUTIT

The Columbus St. Lunchroom softball team defeated the Criterion team, a National League team, 10 to 9 in a ten-inning contest at the Mulberry St. diamond Tuesday evening.

Harry Williams pitched for the Criterion team with McFadden behind the bat while Hargrave and Simpson formed the battery for the Columbus team. The score: Lunchroom 10, Criterion 9. 1-10-10. Criterion 120 022 110 0-9.

WIFE-MURDER JURY WILL GET CASE SOON

JEFFERSON, O., July 17.—The life of Tibby Smith, 26, accused of conspiring the murder of his 23-year-old wife and the mother of his two children for the love of a quarter-blood Indian girl today was expected to be placed in the hands of twelve men—unopposed to capital punishment and yet unopposed to "mental weakness" as legitimate evidence.

Indications were this morning as Smith's trial entered its closing chapters that the young Ashtabula truckman will know his fate from the lips of his jury by tonight.

Fighting with all the resources of the state behind him to send the accused man to the electric chair for the murder of his wife, Prosecutor Howard M. Nator gathered about him twelve witnesses whom he will call in rebuttal to the defense case.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, July 17.—Under the leadership of the coppers, amusements, business equipments, and a wide scattering of miscellaneous issues, the stock market continued its irregular advance, in a generally quiet trading session today.

Interests committed to the rise found difficulty in attempting to stir up interest in the usual run of speculative favorites, and detecting the necessity of maintaining their dominant hold on price movements, the bull contingent switched promptly to such recently neglected groups as coppers and amusements in which a lingering short interest was rudely prodded.

Amusement shares in particular ruled buoyant, with aggressive buying in Fox Film, General Theaters, Loew's, Paramount and Warner Bros., bringing about a sharp advance in these issues.

GIRL SCOUTS of America

Xenia Girl Scouts have received a call from Miss Ethel Myers, director of the Girl Scouts Camp at Middletown, asking that all reservations for the last week of camp, be in not later than Saturday, July 19. The last week session is from July 23 to August 4. There are only sixteen reservations for this week and as the reservations are limited, anyone interested is asked to get in touch with Mrs. Elizabeth Anderson immediately.

Xenia Girl Scouts have been greatly favored by being allowed the privilege of the splendid equipment, trained leaders, sanitary swimming pool and beautiful scenery at Camp Wildwood. The rates are very reasonable, being only $5.00 a week. It is announced, Rev. Xenia Girl Scouts are planning to attend the second week, which speaks well for the camp. Transportation will be furnished those who do not have a way to get there.

VISITING RECTOR TO CONDUCT RITES

The Rev. William E. Hull, Mechantesburg, O., will have charge of the service and deliver the sermon at Christ Episcopal Church, this city, Sunday morning, it is announced.

The service will be a choral celebration of the Holy Communion, and due to the fact that it is the last communion service before the August vacation, a good attendance of communicants of the parish is being sought.

The Rev. Mr. Hull was formerly rector of St. Paul's Church, Mt. Vernon, O., and in recent years has supplied in various churches of the diocese. He has administered the communion service several times in the local church.

FOIL ATTEMPT TO HOLD-UP THEATER

An unsuccessful attempt was made by a lone bandit to rob the manager and assistant manager of Loew's Dayton theater Thursday morning.

About ten o'clock a man followed assistant Manager Robert Curry into the theater and to his office on the second floor, where he demanded that the safe be opened. Curry was unable to open the safe, and he detained the would-be bandit there until about 11 o'clock when Manager Ernest Austgen entered. Austgen, ordered to open the safe, pleaded that he did not have the combination. After waiting a short time the bandit evidently became frightened and left.

Tells mother secret of easy washdays—and whiter clothes

THIS was the easiest washday I've had since I've been married. How Rinso's thick suds soaked out the dirt! I didn't need to do a bit of scrubbing or boiling. And just see how white the clothes are!

"No more washboards for me. I'm changing to Rinso for good."

A real thrift-soap

Rinso is all you need—even in hardest water. No bar soaps, chips, powders, softeners. Rinso gives twice as much suds, cup for cup, as lightweight, puffed-up soaps. Rich, lasting suds.

And Rinso is safe for your finest linens. Clothes last longer, for they don't need to be scrubbed threadbare.

The makers of 38 washers recommend Rinso. Marvelous for dishes, too. Get the BIG package today.

DAIRYING LEADS AS SOURCE OF FARM INCOME IN OHIO

That the source of income from the sale of agricultural products varied in 1929 in different areas of Ohio is clearly indicated by statistics being compiled by Robert E. Straszheim of the Rural Economics Department at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station. The dairy enterprise was the leading source of income for the state as a whole, accounting for approximately 28 per cent of the total. Dairying was first in forty-five counties; in twenty-seven counties hogs were the most important source; in seven, cattle; in three, vegetables; in three, poultry; in one sheep; in one, fruit; and in one, tobacco.

The gross cash income per acre increased as the animal enterprises represented a larger and larger per cent of the total gross cash income so long as conditions such as size of farm and soil type remained homogeneous. This fact is clearly demonstrated by the following illustrations. In Van Wert County the gross cash income per acre was $14.70 where 64 per cent of the total income was derived from the animal enterprises; while in Allen County 81 per cent of the total income was due to animal enterprises which gave an income of $18.60 per acre or a difference of $3.90 in favor of the county with the more or higher quality livestock. In Defiance County where 67 per cent of the total income came from animal enterprises, the income per acre was only $13.70; while in Williams County the income per acre was $17.20 when 79 per cent of the total came from animal enterprises, or an increase of $3.50 per acre.

Mimeographed copies of the estimated gross cash income from the sale of agricultural products from the farm by counties in 1929 may be obtained by addressing a request to the Rural Economics

Department, Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio.

Scientist Completes History of America's First Cliff Dwellers

By ALICE DENHOFF
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 17.—The book of the history of the Pueblo Indians is a difficult one to read. It tells the story of the two thousand year history of the aristocrat of North American Indians, not in words but in tree rings, masonry, bits of broken pottery and ornaments of turquoise. The man who has deciphered this weird and fascinating story is Neil M. Judd, leader of many of the National Geographical Society's expeditions and curator of the National Museum at Washington.

After eight years of research and study, Judd has completed the story of the Pueblo Indians from the time of the birth of Christ right down to the present. His findings have been news even to the Hopi and Zuni tribes, whose oldest legends do not reach back into the dead years that the expedition has reconstructed so amazingly.

Complete Record
So accurate are Mr. Judd's findings, that it is now possible to know the year in which any of forty famous Southwest pueblos was built. According to the findings of the archaeologist, Indian life in the Southwest reached its highest cultural level about one thousand years ago, and the apex of its development is represented by Pueblo Bonito, America's first apartment house, a four-story dwelling rising in terraces in the manner of the most modern and magnificent apartment houses. A communal dwelling, it housed twelve hundred Indians, and it has been carefully repaired by expeditions under the auspices of the National Geographical Society. The work has taken more than seven years, and will be preserved as a national monument and a mute reminder of the past glory of the Pueblos.

Judd divides the civilization of the Pueblo Indians into five distinct eras of development. The first period is still hidden by the mists of time. The fifth is that of the Pueblo now living in New Mexico and Arizona. The large communal structures, according to Judd, characterized the third period of Pueblo development.

The tree-ring calendar, by means of which the age of Pueblo Bonito was established, gives mute but unmistakable evidence that the wood for the first ceiling was cut in the year 919 A. D. The latest ceiling uncovered by the expedition is made of wood that was cut from some thick, dark forest in 1130 A. D. The wood used represents twenty-two generations of Arizona pine trees, a chain of unbroken growth extending from 1929 back to 700 A. D.

America's first apartment house was under construction, it would seem, just seven centuries before the doughty Pilgrim fathers landed at Plymouth Rock. It was undergoing extensive alterations and repairs at the time of the Battle of Hastings in 1066 A. D. And it had fallen into a state of disuse and decline fully three centuries before Columbus first saw light of day.

The First of the Line
It is thought that the Pueblos are descended from a long-headed people known as the "Basket Makers," an unidentified people who made baskets and textiles, but who were apparently unfamiliar with the technique of pottery making. The Basket Makers, a nomadic, hunting tribe, to whom such weapons as the bow and arrow were unknown, are believed to have been the first inhabitants of the United States to acquire and make use of agriculture. It has not yet been ascertained just how they discovered a variety of maize or Indian corn, but it is presumed that they obtained it from the highlands of Mexico. The discovery that the earth yielded food gradually forced the Basket Makers into a semi-sedentary and more settled life. And it is at that period probably that their culture merged with that of the Spaniards in 1540, the pre-historic Pueblos had no metal, no beasts of burden or domestic animals, it is obvious that from their architecture and building that their civilization was on a high plane. Other peoples have left strange monuments, religious edifices and altars, but the Pueblo found his highest expression in the form of domestic architecture as represented by the communal dwellings, just as Americans are doing today.

Cutting Corners Too Fine?

Complete Bank Service Shows You How
to Have a Cash Reserve

KEEP every penny earning" is a true but much abused phrase. Money can earn many valuable things besides interest. Using money to build your credit may often earn more profit than any other sound financial investment. Keeping a substantial cash reserve on hand frequently permits the taking of profits offered by quick-fire business opportunities. Usually these require "cash on the nail" with little or no time to convert securities. These chances for gain are more common just when other investments are difficult to liquidate.

Most men who have accumulated large fortunes, make it a practice in their personal and business finance to keep an adequate cash reserve for such opportunities.

Not the least advantage of surplus funds in your checking account, comes from the strength it adds to personal morale. A cash reserve brings a satisfaction, a feeling of familiarity with success, a confident physical bearing which have a definite money value to the user—for they give him a broader view point and show him an ever widening field for profitable activity.

Building up and keeping such a surplus immediately available is simple in principle, and not as hard to do as most people suppose. With the many demands on personal and business income, perhaps you think, "How can I keep a larger balance in my checking account? How shall I determine what the amount is to be?"

In most cases there is a way to build up a reasonable reserve of ready cash and without unpleasant skimping and scraping. Every day, your banker is in contact with hundreds of cases. Often, some simple adjustment opens the way to a new plan of personal finance, with greater freedom, more comfort and less irksome detail.

Your banker has helped many others find the way. In many instances the plan has proved to be the turning point to greater success. Use your banker more. Get acquainted with him and let him pass on to you the methods successfully used by others with financial problems just like yours.

"Cutting corners too fine," is a common stumbling block in the way of greater profits. A cash reserve is one solution and your banker will gladly cooperate with you in building it up. Talk with him today.

DAD'S GIRL

EDNA ROBB WEBSTER

THE STORY OF A GIRL WHO DESERVED TO WIN

CHAPTER 52

They were passing a big, square colonial house, set back from the road among the pines and giant elms which shaded a green-carpeted lawn. The house was gleaming white and surrounded with shrubs and flowers. Near the gate, at some distance from the house was a large, open shed, where rows of vegetables were bunched for display and signs advertised the prices to passersby.

"When Don's father died, you would have said the place was not worth saving; the house had forgotten what paint was and was fast falling to ruin. Look at it now! Prettiest place around."

"She stopped the car before the market stand and a presently a tall, broad-shouldered man, clad in blue denim overalls, strode across the driveway to the waiting car. He lifted his hat and smiled. Clara Dee was instantly aware of flashing eyes and teeth—great, blue, sparkling eyes and white, even teeth.

"Good morning, Mrs. Wilson. How is everyone?"

"Fine, thank you, Don, this is Miss Forester, Madge's roommate from St. Louis, who is visiting with us."

Again he doffed his hat, and his eyes and teeth flashed with his smile. He kept his hat in his hand and Clara Dee noted the well-brushed blonde hair. Like glistening taffy, when it is first pulled.

"I want three or four ripe cantaloupes, if you're not asking a fortune for them," Aunt Jennie laughed.

"No, they are cheap today," he replied jovially. "You always seem to smell a bargain. Flooded market." He examined a dozen or so, tested the tops with the pressure of his thumbs. Clara Dee involuntarily compared these sinewy brown hands with those of men she had known. Some were practically useless except on the steering wheel of a car, strumming a ukulele, or petting. Ivan's were capable enough with his laboratory apparatus—but these were hands which could do anything required of them. "What's the matter with Tom's melons this year?" he winked slyly at Jennie.

"Same old story," snapped Jennie, with straight lips. "No time to plant them until the real crops were in."

They laughed merrily. "I think you'll find these good," he prophesied, placing them in her basket. "Let me know if they aren't and I'll make them good. I'm glad to have met you, Miss Forester. Bring the girls over to see mother one day, Mrs. Wilson."

"I'll try to, Don. But you are coming to the party Wednesday evening, don't forget," admonished Jennie. "I always have a lawn party for Madge and I'm giving one for both of you this year," she explained to Clara Dee.

"How lovely!" Clara Dee enthused. "My first country party. Don't you dare not to come, Mr. Evans," she added to Jennie's warning.

"Not for anything should I miss it," he promised; and his eyes said that he wished the party were this very night.

"He's a wonderful fellow," Aunt Jennie declared, as they drove away. "Make a mighty fine husband for some girl, but he's devoted to his mother, two brothers and only sister, who is studying music in some eastern conservatory."

It was the end of the haying season, so next day Clara Dee had the novel experience of riding in from the field on the last two loads and watching the men put the hay in the barn with a great two-wheeled fork which operated by ropes and pulleys on a track. She discovered that there was still another diction which puzzled her as had Estelle Kays. Tom Wilson spoke of "win-drows" and twitches and cultivating and many other terms which he made an effort to explain to her whenever she questioned him.

Tuesday afternoon, the four girls baked cakes and made pressed chicken for the sandwiches for Wednesday evening and the next day was devoted to cleaning the house, decorating the rooms with garden flowers, stringing Japanese lanterns among the trees on the lawn and freezing the ice cream.

"And how are the guests entertained?" wondered Clara Dee. There were no orchestra, no card tables nor any of the paraphernalia for forms of amusement to which she was accustomed.

"Just you wait and see," Madge advised. "They furnish their own music and entertainment. In a way it is a sort of dance, only they sing instead of having an orchestra and dance on the grass. It's really more fun than you can imagine. I only wish Earnest were here," she added for the twentieth time.

Clara Dee was frocked in a bouffant creation of daffodil yellow or gandy, for the party; and when Don Evans, clad in white flannel trousers and blue coat, crossed the grassy carpet to where she stood with Madge, meeting and receiving the guests, an admiration such as he had never bestowed on any girl, shone in his eyes.

"I never knew that flowers came to life," he whispered, at the first opportunity to speak with her alone. "You must be here in this humble gathering by the grace of the good Jupiter."

"One thing I have discovered, is that these 'humble' gentlemen are as capable of flattery as our city cousins," she mocked him, laughing.

"Come now, I am serious, Miss Forester. I was never so hopelessly at the mercy of a girl in my life. If this were a formal dance, I should claim every one."

"I am sorry it isn't, so that I could show you that you couldn't have every one."

"But you will be my partner for the first game," he bowed quixotically and drew her hand through his arm.

"They sang 'We'll All Promenade'—'Captain Jinks.' 'We've Got a New Pig in the Parlor.' 'Shoo, Flee, Don't Bother Me,' and many others, circled and two-stepped, promaded in twos and fours and 'gave right hands to their partners.' Don made a special effort to remain near her, cut in on turn, arranged that when the leader called 'all promenade,' he was beside her to offer his arm. 'Like it?' he asked solicitously.

"It's very jolly," she nodded.

"But they don't amuse themselves in this way where you came from," he inquired suggestively.

"You may be working in St. Louis, but you don't belong there. Tell me, where did you really come from?"

"Why not? I came from New York only three months ago, but I had been working for the same company there," she evaded.

"But you haven't worked for your living, always, I'll wager. You need not tell me unless you wish, but I believe there is some mystery in your life which has led to your being here. Don't you know that you are different from all these other girls—even Madge?"

For reply, she swung away upon the arm of another fellow and laughed back at him, saucily, but she felt uncomfortable under his discerning scrutiny. She was popular, as always, but there were fewer of these men who dared express their admiration.

She ate supper with Don, sitting on a bench beneath a lilac bush, balancing her plate on her knee. They had matched verses, cut in half, for supper partners. "You arranged it so that you would draw mine," she accused him.

"Of course. Did you suppose I came here to talk over the weather with one of these girls I've known all my life. I've tweaked their 'pig-tails' in school and carried home books for every one of them. I know their affairs from A to Z and those of their parents, as people know each intimately in all rural communities."

"You hate yourself, don't you?" "No—you misunderstand me. None of them has ever especially interested me. But you—"

"I should like another piece of cake, please," she suggested. He was gone instantly and returned with a whole plate of cake, placed it on the bench beside her. "We'll leave it here an hour or so, without losing so much precious time. How long are you staying here?"

"Only this week."

"He turned to stare at her in astonishment. 'And it's half gone? Why? I've only met you, so far, I say, wire the boss for another week.'"

"I can't, possibly. You see I've only worked for these people less than six months, and I don't care about looking for another place right away. You wouldn't either if you'd ever tried it."

"And before that?" he prompted.

She was glad that he couldn't see her face closely in the dim light from the lanterns. "Before that, I went to business school."

She wondered what he would think if she told him of all that had transpired before that.

He did not urge her further confidence, but exclaimed, "Well, gosh, we can't waste any more time! Will you go for a swim with me tomorrow and let me take you into town for dinner in the evening?"

"I'd love to swim, but I'd much rather not be entertained in the city while I am here. This week in the country is such a treat for me."

"All right—as you like—then make it a picnic supper. Just you and I, please!"

Anybody who says Joe Brown "stole the show" away from Winnie Lightner in the musical comedy "Hold Everything" that played the Orpheum this week, is showing downright masculine partiality. Joe is nobody's fool as a showman, but when it comes to taking out from under the nose that comical Amazon, Lightner, will have to get up early in the morning. The best comedy scenes in the production were worked out by Joe and Winnie together, each vying as for the other's gags, why be partial?

This is interesting only in that shows that colored pictures are to stay, in spite of everything some people say. Technicolor began seven new productions in June and fifty-seven feature pictures and forty short subjects have been produced by this color process during the last year. Multicolor is said to be simpler in its laboratory. Its laboratories will be equipped to turn out a million feet a week or something more than half the Technicolor output. This column devoted considerable space to a technicolor description of the Technicolor process some time ago. All letters insisting that we repeat this explanation will be tossed in the waste basket.

Because it has been considered a business to use two big attractions in the same picture, Robert Woolsey and Bert Wheeler, who cavorted in "Cuckoos," are aviation last year when after attending a flying school he flew his plane, American boy, from New York to Los Angeles, establishing new junior records for crossing the continent from east to west and west to east.

Under the sponsorship of various flying companies he continued his aviation career with flights in the east. He was engaged in taking his friend, Mockler, from Cleveland to Keene, N. H., to keep a lecture engagement, when the accident which caused his death, occurred.

Almost immediately after his father's death, Goldsborough planned to become an aviator and after attending high school in Queens, New York, he took up his studies at an aviation school. He was granted a pilot's license in November of last year and started on his record-breaking flight across the country in April, 1930.

The young flyer had attended school with Richard James, who was the first junior aviator to fly across the continent. In December 1928, James completed his flight and the feat inspired young Goldsborough to make plans to better his friend's time.

Young Goldsborough landed in Los Angeles May 4, 1930, with thirteen hours and fifty-seven minutes shaved from the westbound record of young James. He left Los Angeles three days later for New York and arrived in New York May 11 with two more junior aviation titles to his credit—the west-to-east record of twenty-eight hours and eighteen minutes and the round-trip mark of sixty-two hours and twenty-one minutes.

Funeral plans will be made in New York probably late today.

"For six years I had rheumatism in my right hip and for three months was unable to work. The bottoms of my feet burned like fire, and my joints would crack.
